

Political Struggle In India

Crisis Seen In Wake Of Nehru's Death

NEW DELHI (AP)—A hushed Parliament heard a warning today that a struggle for the government leadership left vacant by the death of Prime Minister Nehru could plunge India into crisis.

J. B. Kripalani, an independent and long Nehru's most effective parliamentary foe, warned his opponents in Nehru's ruling Congress party that an open fight among candidates for prime minister would be dangerous.

Acting Prime Minister G. L. Nanda, taking the top seat in Parliament for the first time, appeared grave and moved about restlessly in his chair as Kripalani declared:

"Unity and consolidation are our primary tasks now, and I hope our colleagues on the Congress benches will be up to it."

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk listened intently from the gallery as Kripalani eulogized Nehru, who died Wednesday, as a man who hated Communist ruthlessness and imperialism and colonialism, and who worked tirelessly for economic progress for starving India. Seven other Parliament members also eulogized Nehru.

The capital's newspapers devoted front pages to the cremation rites for the 74-year-old Nehru Thursday. But editorial pages were given over to somber reflections on the future.

There were demands that the Congress party settle its quarrels quietly and make a unanimous choice, to avoid feeding the fires of factionalism and separatism that kept Nehru from tearing India apart.

"In this hour of great sorrow," said the Indian Express, "the Congress party must rise to the occasion."

US Spending $2.5 Billion In Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Federal appropriations for services and procurement in Missouri will exceed $2.5 billion this year, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said today.

Symington gave the estimate in a prepared speech for a luncheon meeting that followed laying of the cornerstone of the new $23.8 million federal building in Kansas City.

The senator said Kansas City's importance in federal activity is shown by the fact that although the metropolitan area has only about 16 per cent of the state's population it "now receives approximately 25 per cent of federal payrolls and purchases in the state."

The largest single industrial payroll in western Missouri, he said, is furnished by the Atomic Energy plant operated by Bendix and employing 8,000 people. The federal civil service has 20,437 people employed in Kansas City with payrolls totalling more than $100 million annually. That excludes payrolls at military installations.

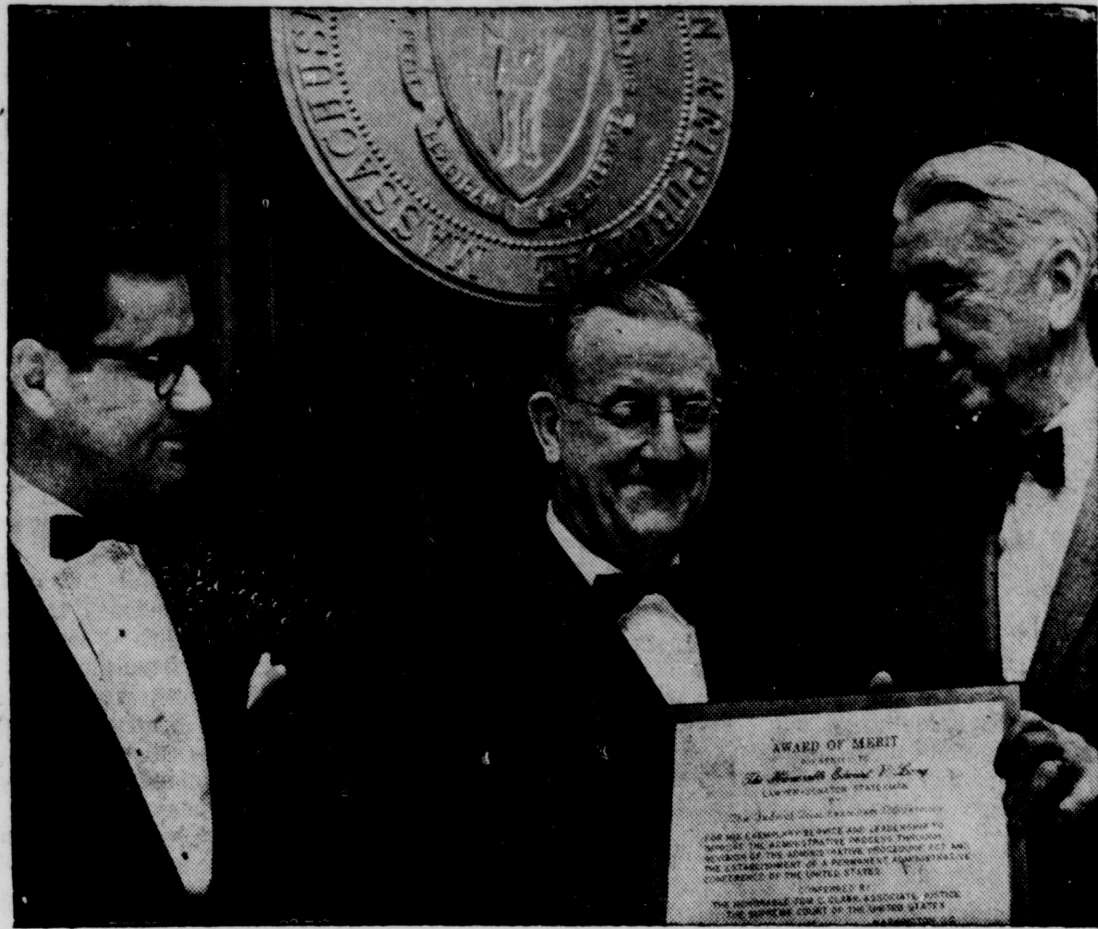

Symington itemized fiscal 1963 expenditures and payments thus far reported for Missouri as $686,111,000 for military prime contracts, $433 million for civilian and military wages and salaries, $391,322,000 for various kinds of social security benefits, $270,100,950 for federal aid payments to state and local governments and individuals, and $166,259,875 for veterans benefits—a total of $1,946,793,825.

"With Missouri now up to third place in the nation in defense prime contracts," Symington said, "the fiscal 1964 total is certain to exceed $2.5 billion."

Nose Wheel Collapses

PARIS (AP)—The nose wheel of a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 collapsed as the plane was preparing to take off from Orly Airport for New York today, an airlines spokesman said. The plane skidded off the runway and came to a halt.

None of the 86 passengers or 14 crew members was hurt, the spokesman said.

To Broaden Cuba Fire, Revolt

Urge Tie With Exiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate committee urged today that anti-Castro exile organizations' ties in Cuba be encouraged and strengthened "to maintain and broaden the fire of disaffection and eventual revolt."

"Castro and communism must be expelled from Cuba," asserted a report by a Judiciary subcommittee. "They will be buried the deepest, if buried by Cubans — on the island and in exile."

In issuing the report, Chairman Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said recent events indicate anti-Castro operations are entering a new phase and "the time has come for a meaningful infiltration of Cuba, and a concerted effort to topple the regime."

The report took issue with congressional advocates of a U.S.-supported Cuban government-in-exile.

But it advocated finding a formula for unity among Cuban exile groups looking to creation of an organization which "could authoritatively address governments, international bodies and public opinion, in the cause of Cuban freedom."

Although subcommittee member Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., concurred in the report generally, he said he disagreed particularly with the suggestion that U.S. policy toward Cuba is well-defined and clearly articulated.

"To include in this report a summarization of Cuban policy in the form of a blanket assertion of net progress is ill-advised and uncalled for," Scott said in a statement. "Our policy as to Cuba, in fact, is ill-defined, fumbling, and certainly not clearly articulated."

The subcommittee said the "generally widening gulf" between the exiles and elements combatting the Castro regime within Cuba "is a disturbing, but perhaps inevitable aspect of political development within the refugee community."

"Responsible ties, however, do exist," the report added; some

Perpetuate Ideals Of Late President

BOSTON (AP) — Postmaster General John A. Gronouski said today "This nation intends to perpetuate the ideals of John F. Kennedy."

The Cabinet official spoke at ceremonies dedicating the John Fitzgerald Kennedy memorial stamp in honor of the late president.

Paraphrasing the assassinated president's inaugural speech, Gronouski declared:

"With this stamp, let the word go forth through the world that this nation intends to perpetuate the ideals of John F. Kennedy: to care for the dignity of all people, to support our friends, to maintain our strength, and to continue our search for peaceful solutions to the problems that divide the world."

exile organizations do command loyalties within Cuba."

The report also recommended that:

1. A "sense of urgency" continue in the program to resettle Cuban refugees outside Miami and suggested "a word of encouragement and support by the President himself would be appropriate at this time."

2. Earnest attention be given to "finding a formula which restores family unity to Cubans in the United States — especially to the thousands of unaccompanied children and families whose normal breadwinner remains outside this country."

3. Consideration be given to establishment of a permanent Inter-American Institute of Political and Social Science to give new impulse to a democratic-oriented political development within Latin America.

Ruby Cut On Face

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby received a superficial cut on his face Thursday when he hurled a cuspidor against a light bulb in his County Jail cell.

Sheriff Bill Decker described the wound as "very minor."

Decker said the condemned slayer deliberately broke his eye glasses before shattering the bulb.

"He threw a tizzy, but we got him quieted down and he's doing all right now," the sheriff said.

Kennedy Would Have Been 47 Today

JFK Stamp Marks Late Chief's Birthday

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — John Fitzgerald Kennedy would have been 47 years old today.

The birthday, in all likelihood, would have been celebrated with a family gathering at the Kennedy compound of summer homes at Hyannis Port, the place the late president called "home."

As president, he took an extended Memorial Day weekend away from the White House to begin his summer round of visits to the seashore.

There'd always be a party for the children—there are more than 20 Kennedy small fry—and customarily they had presents for "Uncle Jack." Sometimes there were small presents for the children, too.

With that over, the adult Kennedys would gather for dinner and a quiet observance of the birthday.

One year, the Massachusetts Democratic party set up a fundraising birthday dinner and Kennedy made an evening round-trip flight to Boston to attend it.

This holiday weekend, there will be no gathering of the clan at the seaside compound.

Six months and one week ago, an assassin's bullet killed Kennedy.

But the President's widow, Mrs. John F. Kennedy, and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, flew to Hyannis Port to take part in an international television program on John F. Kennedy's spiritual legacy to the world.

The President's other brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will join Irish Prime Minister Sean Lemass for part

Honolulu Meet Topic

Strong Asia Role Advocated of UN

WASHINGTON — U. S. officials are reported seriously considering the possibility of the United Nations undertaking a larger role in war-torn South-east Asia than has so far been suggested.

This is one of the lines of action expected to be discussed when American policy-makers meet in Honolulu Monday and Tuesday to work out recommendations for President Johnson.

After studying the recommendations, Johnson may make some initial decisions on the U.S. course of action.

With the Communist offensive in Laos apparently slowed down, the air of urgency over the Southeast Asian situation has eased.

The Honolulu conference will take a long-range look at the problems of trying to secure peace and stability in Laos, Viet Nam and Cambodia, as well as discuss the immediate problems arising out of the Communist offensives.

Expanded military action by the United States is another of the possible courses to be considered. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in a speech a week ago that, if Communist aggression continued, the result could be "to expand the war."

Johnson announced the Honolulu meeting Thursday, saying the purpose of the Cabinet-level talks would be "to review the situation in the entire area" of Southeast Asia.

Officials said the talks would be secret, and that recommendations would be reported only to the President.

Coil Quits Supreme Court Job In State

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Supreme Court Commissioner Cullen Coil resigned today to return to the practice of law. He recently completed his 13th year as a commissioner.

Coil, 56, said he and former state Sen. George Rozier of Jefferson City have formed a law partnership. His resignation is effective June 8.

A source inside the court said it was expected that Circuit Court Judge Andrew Jackson Higgins of Platte City will replace Coil as commissioner.

Chief Justice Henry I. Eager said Coil "has been a most efficient and active and effective commissioner. His personality is exceptional. The court is suffering a great loss."

Coil is a graduate of the University of Missouri law school and served two terms as president of the University's National Alumni Association.

funeral in India, is scheduled to visit Bangkok, Thailand, and Saigon, South Viet Nam, this weekend on his way to Honolulu.

Others who will participate in the conference will be Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. envoy in South Viet Nam; Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Apollo Boosts US Hopes For Moon Land

Thursday Test Shot Adds To Crew Confidence

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The first unmanned model of the Apollo moonship orbited the earth today, buoying U.S. hopes of manned lunar landings in the 1960s.

Dr. George Mueller, director of the nation's manned spaceflight program, said the success "adds to our confidence in meeting our goal of landing men on the moon in this decade."

But he said many more launchings — in the Gemini, Apollo and several unmanned programs — are required before man sets forth on a lunar voyage.

A Saturn I rocket, which the United States claims is the most powerful in the world, hoisted the spacecraft into orbit more than 100 miles high Thursday. Both rocket and spacecraft launched were "Model T" versions of the more powerful, streamlined hardware to be used on the moon flights.

The spacecraft weighed only 17,000 pounds, carried no internal gear and did not separate from the burned out second stage. It was the same shape as the real thing — which will weigh 90,000 pounds — and proved that in combination with the Saturn I it could withstand the jolting climb through the atmosphere. No recovery of the satellite was planned.

The Saturn I logged its sixth successful test flight in as many launchings. Saturn I, with 1.5 million pounds of booster thrust, is forerunner of the massive 7.5-million pound thrust Saturn V, which will launch moonbound astronauts.

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center which builds Saturn rockets, said the next Saturn I firing, scheduled in August, will be essentially a repeat of Thursday's effort to evaluate systems.

Spacemen Take Photos of US

PARIS (AP) — A former U.S. senator quoted Premier Khrushchev today as saying Soviet spacemen have taken photographs of military installations and he assumes U.S. spacemen do the same when they pass over the Soviet Union.

William Benton, former Democratic senator from Connecticut said Khrushchev offered to display them to President Johnson "if he wishes."

And said Benton, Khrushchev suggested that the United States and the Soviet Union might exchange such photos.

Benton said Khrushchev was apparently suggesting that the United States obtain aerial inspection of Cuba from outer space and thus avoid any new crisis in the Caribbean.

Benton talked to Khrushchev Thursday in the Kremlin. The senator met with reporters after arriving in Paris, where he is U.S. envoy to the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization which has its headquarters here.

Benton told newsmen today that Khrushchev apparently was suggesting that the United States abandon reconnaissance flights which might encounter Cuban antiaircraft fire. President Johnson has said such flights are necessary and will be continued.

Benton quoted Khrushchev as follows:

"Neither President Johnson nor I want another crisis over Cuba. This is the time for sober sense to reign."

Benton said that Khrushchev, obviously concerned lest Cuba provoke another U.S. - Russian confrontation, also suggested that the Americans confine their planes to offshore flights over neutral waters. Here, Khrushchev presumably meant the use of wide-angle lenses which might be able to take adequate photographs from high altitudes.

Khrushchev, according to Benton, said he was distressed at the presence of American troops in South Viet Nam.

Benton said Khrushchev launched into a statement about the "errors" of American policy.

EMK to Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., arrived in Ireland today for a two-day visit and a memorial service for President Kennedy, his brother.

Lord Mayor Sean Moore, members of the Department of Foreign Affairs and the U.S. Embassy staff were on hand to greet Kennedy at Dublin's airport.

Two Charged With Assault In Michigan

Negotiations On Strike Given Spur By Romney

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP) — While National Guardsmen patrolled a factory where a strike had exploded into a near-riot, negotiators began talks today that Michigan's governor said would continue "until they produce results."

Two persons stood charged with assault to commit murder in the shotgun wounding of a plant guard and one plant guard was accused of unlawful discharge of a firearm.

Agreement to resume previously sporadic negotiations in the 3-month-old strike at Essex Wire Corp. came Thursday night after a five-hour series of meetings in Gov. George W. Romney's office at Lansing.

"The meetings will be held for a reasonable period each day until they produce results," the governor said. "They have agreed to stick to it for the purpose of working out a contract."

Romney sent the National Guard to Hillsdale. He declared a "state of public emergency" and ordered the Essex plant shut down and its guards disarmed after a near-riot Wednesday night.

More than 250 persons besieged the Hillsdale Courthouse and smashed its windows with rocks after police arrested three persons at the picket line at the plant.

Three were charged with malicious destruction of property and two others were held in protective custody until a formal charge was filed Thursday.

Death Toll Starts Low For Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death-toll rate ran below normal in Memorial Day weekend's traffic today.

Weather conditions were pleasant over most of the nation, and auto movement on the roads appeared to reach substantial volume.

By late morning, a count of traffic deaths begun at 6 p.m. Thursday showed 29 fatalities. A record high traffic death rate of more than 110 a day was the average for the first four months of this year when total deaths numbered 13,350.

The National Safety Council said that between 410 and 490 persons may be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour holiday period which ends at midnight Sunday.

The council estimates that more than 83 million cars will be on the move sometime during the holiday period.

The record high traffic death toll for a Memorial Day holiday period was 462 over four days in 1961. The record high for a three-day observance of Memorial Day was 371 in 1953. The record low was 204 in 1948.

An Associated Press survey, made for comparative purposes, showed 418 traffic deaths in the nonholiday weekend of May 14-17, extending over a period of 78 hours, similar to the Memorial Day period.

Ann Landers Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Our 15-year-old daughter is upstairs crying her eyes out. I told her I didn't want to hear any more about it and that I was writing to you. This is what happened:

Marietta's boy friend called her on the telephone an hour ago. Her father answered. He told Gordy that Marietta was taking a bath and asked him to please call later.

When Marietta came into the living room her father announced that Gordy was supposed to call again, after she had time to get out of the tub. Well, Marietta went right straight through the roof. She said it was vulgar, crude and horrible of her father to tell Gordy that she was in the bathtub. Now she doesn't think she can face him again as long as she lives.

May we have your views?—BEDLAM CENTER.

Dear Center: It is not essential that everyone who calls on the telephone be provided with a detailed account of why the person wanted is not available at that precise moment.

It should come as no surprise to Gordy however, that Marietta bathes. I don't see how this information could diminish her in his eyes. If she hasn't stopped crying by the time this appears in print tell her to dry up and grow up.

Dear Ann Landers: We are three married children who need some advice.

Ma died 10 years ago. Pa bought a double cemetery plot and put one big stone in the middle. Ma's name is on one side of the stone, and there is a space for Pa's name on the other side.

Three years ago Pa remarried. These past few months Pa's second wife has been after him to buy another double plot for the two of them. It is the only thing we have ever heard them argue about since they married.

We are trying to stay out of it. Of course we talk among ourselves and think our father should be laid to rest beside our mother but we haven't said so. If Pa doesn't decide soon, he may need that plot sooner than he thinks. What should be done?—C. O.

Dear C. O.: It is customary to be buried beside the spouse with whom one spent the greater part of life.

Circumstances alter cases, however, so please suggest to your father that he and his wife discuss this with the clergyman who married them. The family members will then not be involved and the decision will be an objective one.

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting sick and tired of reading that same old worn-out phrase in your column — "When you marry a divorced man you marry the whole package—the ex-mate, the kids, the ex's in-laws, old friends, on so on." You gotta be crazy.

I married a divorced man and there's nothing in my marriage contract that says I have to be bothered with any of the aforementioned kooks. My husband's ex-wife its a religious fanatic who reads the Bible with one hand and drinks gin with the other. Her children are going to be just like her.

American courts seem to have the insane idea that children are better off with their mother, even if she is a nut, so I say let her paddle her own canoe. And why don't you talk about something else for a change?—OUT-SPOKEN.

Dear Out: It's easy to say "Let her paddle her own canoe" but the canoe has your husband's kids in it.

If this woman is as nutty as you say, and if your husband is halfway decent, he will keep in close touch with his children. This means you are going to be "intouch" too, Madame—whether you like it or not.

Civil Defense Question Still Up In The Air

The question of whether or not Sedalia and Pettis County's Civil Defense agency will be sustained after June 1 remained unanswered today — the last business day for city and county officials before the agency director's resignation becomes effective.

Jack Kraus, present director of the agency, resigned to accept a radio operator's position with the Highway Patrol and leaves the CD job officially as of June 1.

Presiding Judge C. Berry Elliott said a decision on maintaining or closing the agency would not be made until the County Court could meet with the mayor and City Council. The agency has been operating on a budget split by the city and county and supplemented by federal matching funds.

Mayor L. L. Studer sought to hold a meeting with the County Court judges this morning, but the court requested a delay as one judge, C. M. Purchase, of the western district, was not able to be present.

Judge Elliott said Kraus' secretary will remain on duty on her half-day schedule until a decision is reached. Other than volunteers, she will apparently constitute the CD agency beginning Monday until a decision is made.

In Washington, President Johnson paid tribute to his predecessor with a memorial service Thursday.

More than 40 top government officials, White House aides and Democratic committee officers who served under Kennedy attended the 10-minute service in the state dining room of the White House.

"He was," said Johnson, "in the words of the Bible one of those that were honored in their generations, and were the glory of their times."

Police Reports

Marion Lyles, 515 West Pettis, was treated at Bothwell Hospital shortly after 5 p.m. Thursday for a laceration on the left side of the throat requiring eight stitches. He was treated by Dr. A. R. Maddox and released.

Police were summoned to the hospital after Lyles appeared at the emergency room for treatment.

Two other Negroes, a man and a woman, were held overnight in jail by police for investigation of assault, in connection with the incident. They were released at 10:25 a.m. Friday morning, however, without charge.

Police said officer William Shobe recovered a knife from the Lyles home.

Algernon Barnes, Washington, Mo., told police late Thursday night that he had lost his billfold containing $145 in cash and some other papers.

Police found early Friday morning that vandals had sprayed some pictures and obscene language in green paint on the rear of the A & P Supermarket, 14th and Limit.

Accidents

LeRoy Howard, 39, 305 North Summit, received serious back injuries about 5:50 p.m. Thursday in a motorcycle accident just north of the intersection of Broadway and Summit. He was apparently paralyzed from the chest down.

Howard was taken to the Bothwell Hospital in an Ewing ambulance and treated by Drs. R. A. Enoch and A. R. Maddox. He was later transferred to Trinity Lutheran Hospital in Kansas City.

According to police, the accident occurred as Howard lost control of his 1948 Harley-Davidson motorcycle while negotiating a left turn onto Summit from Broadway. He had been eastbound on Broadway and went up the bank into the yard at 1101 East Broadway, striking a tree and coming to rest in a ditch on the east side of Summit. According to the police accident report, Howard related to the investigating officer that the throttle had stuck on the machine and that he took to the bank in order to avoid a collision with a parked car.

The motorcycle was extensively damaged.

Roger McGinnis, 17, of Route 1, Smithton, sustained an injury to his right hand when his west-bound stationwagon left the road and overturned near Beaman at 11 p.m. Thursday night.

The Highway Patrol said the accident occurred on Route HH two-tenths of a mile west of Route O.

McGinnis told the patrol he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car. The 1952 Ford stationwagon driven by McGinnis went into a ditch and flipped.

Memory Trip
For Johnson
To Home State

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson made a memory-filled journey today to Texas—and his high school of 40 years ago—after exhorting New York Democrats to work for a "great victory" in November.

Johnson flew here from New York in the early morning hours.

He had only two appearances on his schedule for a ranch weekend—one tonight to address the graduating class of Johnson City's Lyndon B. Johnson High School, where he was graduated in '24, and the other to speak to University of Texas graduates in Austin Saturday night.

The President made his November victory appeal during a circuit of Democratic fund-raising functions in New York Thursday night. The finale brought 17,000 persons to Madison Square Garden for a two-hour program of entertainment and a Johnson speech.

Appearing at a $100-a-plate dinner of Young Democrats, Johnson said: "Start working tonight for a great victory for the Democratic party next November. And now give us your hand and your heart and your help."

Using phrases reminiscent both of Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, Johnson spoke of crusades and new frontiers.

The chief executive said that Democrats regard "politics and government as a crusade—not a chore." And he added, "I've come up here tonight to ask you to join that crusade."

It was Republican Eisenhower who talked repeatedly of a "Great Crusade" when he first won the presidency in 1952.

Johnson plucked a Kennedy-esque chord after saying that Democrats must look beyond pending civil rights and anti-poverty legislation and, in the future, "offer new programs to solve new problems."

"This is why," he said, "the Democratic party is the place to be—the excitement is here—the satisfaction is here—the frontiers are here."

It was Kennedy who talked of "New Frontiers" in the 1960 presidential race.

Johnson's first appearance in New York was at a dinner of the President's Club—an organization of $1,000 contributors. The President circulated from table to table, shaking hands, but did not eat.

At Madison Square Garden, Johnson asked "for the support of all citizens to complete the work so nobly begun by our martyred president—John F. Kennedy."

"I ask you to march with me along the road to the future—the road that leads to the great society," he said. "This is the work of the Democratic party."

'Fish Killer'
Hunt Continues
On the Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The search continued today for the source of the poison that has killed tens of thousands of fish in the Missouri River, generally between Kansas City and St. Louis.

Federal and state scientists found some dead fish floating in the river near Boonville, Mo., late Thursday. They also found evidence that many of the carcasses have burst and sunk to the bottom of the stream.

Fish of all types have an internal air sac to make them buoyant. When a dead fish bloats and bursts, the sac sometimes pops out of the body and floats away.

Primary Will Shove Out Goulet Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—NBC has decided to bump an entertainment show—the Telephone Hour starring Robert Goulet—for full-dress coverage of California's primary returns next Tuesday night.

CBS will take over the first half of Garry Moore's hour, and if the returns are interesting enough, expand its coverage to a full hour.

As usual, the three major television networks now are in fierce news competition during this presidential election year. There is still, however, a question whether the mass viewing public is as fascinated as the network news departments in the finer details of the preliminary skirmishing.

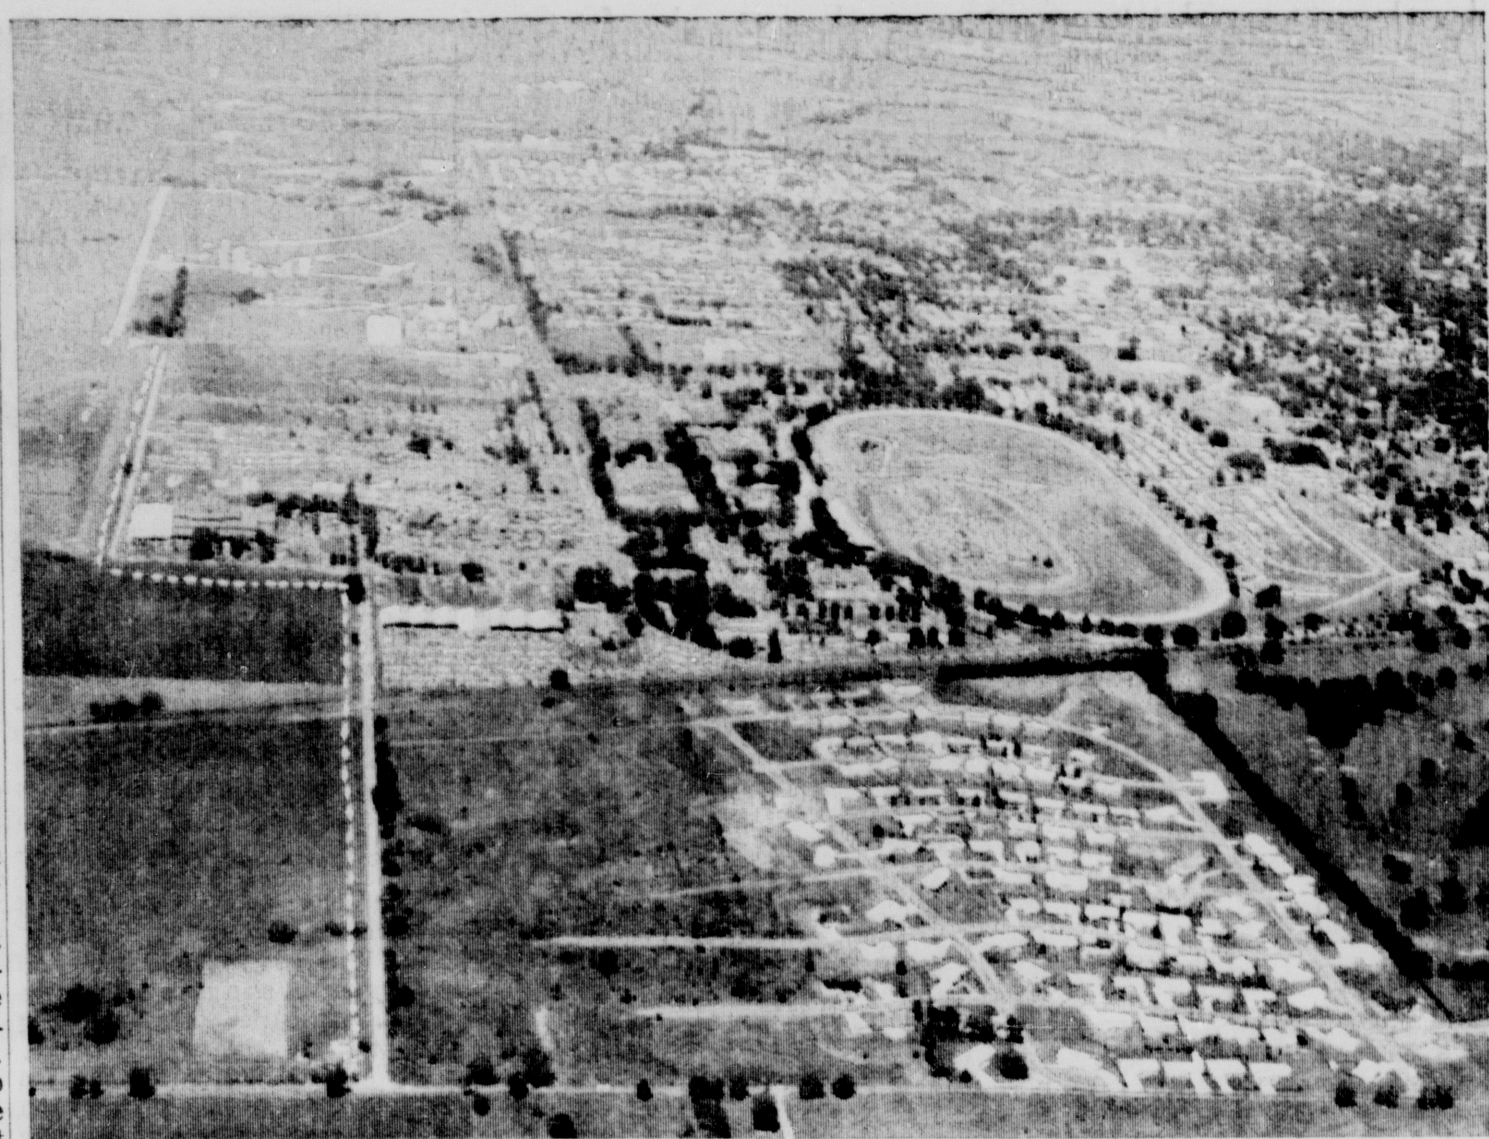

There is even a question about the viewer's overwhelming desire to watch every detail of the approaching national conventions of the two major parties. The networks are planning to provide extensive, expensive coverage of the two events. But televised conventions—to those who were watching them in 1952, 1956 and 1960—have become an accepted though occasional part of television programming.

Next season may very possibly be the last for the slick comedy team of Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance.

Miss Vance, it is known, finds constant transcontinental travel between her Hollywood job and her literary agent husband, John Dodds, and their Connecticut home difficult, and would like to settle down on the East Coast.

Vivian is expected to appear in 20 or more episodes of next season's "Lucy Show." The top candidate at the moment for Vivian's replacement is Ann Southern, who will appear in some of the programs.

SEEKING A WAY OUT—Residents of Southwest Village, lower right portion of this aerial photo, are seeking improvements along Clarendon Road (dotted line at left) in order to ease the traffic jam that is created at South Limit and Plaza Avenue near Holiday Inn. Residents, who have petitioned first the County Court and now the 12-Mile Road District and City of Sedalia, apparently want Clarendon Road improved to give them faster and safer exit from the village although the route will be longer. At Plaza and Limit, motorists must wait for both lanes of South Limit to clear before they can emerge from the village area. By going out Clarendon Road, they could proceed north to Highway 50, along Thompson Blvd., where only the eastbound lane would have to be clear for the traffic to emerge; or they could turn east at 16th Street, then left at State Fair Blvd. and emerge onto Broadway—again with one lane of traffic to contend with; or they could proceed further east on 16th to the traffic light at 16th and Limit and gain access to a thoroughfare there. The first portion of the road marked with a dotted line at the top of the photo is maintained by the 12-Mile Road District and the lower two portions are maintained by the city. Near center of the picture is a dirt road leading from the village to Clarendon Road. The above photo, looking north, was taken during fair week, 1961, and many new structures are not shown.

We Must Do Well in Peace

"He who did well in war," Robert Browning once said, "just earns the right to begin doing well in peace."

Americans have done well in war. From the battlefields of Lexington and Saratoga to New Orleans, Manassas, Belleau Wood, Anzio, Coral Sea and Pork Chop Hill, Americans have fought the good fight — and have won well for their country.

For this bravery, this sacrifice for which no number of words can serve as expiation, Americans will try to remember their slain countrymen on Memorial Day. Fresh flags will fly on American graves around the world as tiny memorials to young lives too soon spent. But this honest gesture, heartfelt though it may be, will not still the threat of future war and suffering.

The long, hard fight for freedom continues. While the small but bitter struggles in Viet Nam and Laos pale when placed against the great, bloody wars of history when thousands of Americans died, the simple fact remains that American lives are being lost in war.

Nearly 250 men have been killed in the jungles of Viet Nam and Laos since 1961. These few lives are no less important than the many given in larger wars.

The road to peace is long and hard; there are many bends and forks and bridges to cross. It will be ever thus, but if we are to demonstrate to the dead that their sacrifices are not without meaning, we must travel on that road to peace, always ready to surmount its obstacles. We must "begin doing well in peace."

Memorial Day is the occasion for such a resolution. But if we do so resolve, we should remember that the real memorials to the dead and the real justification for peace and understanding in the world are not in crumbling stones and tottering statues and fine words.

They are in the ideals of truth, freedom, brotherhood—ideals which have sustained us in the past and which must grow to nobler and bolder proportions if they are to sustain us in the future.

The Rev. John M. Vander Meulen, newly appointed pastor of the Congregational Presbyterian church, Sixth street and Osage avenue, has assumed his duties. Star of the Nile Nikita Khrushchev has breezed through Egypt like President Johnson took Atlanta. According to reports, not since Antony barged up the Nile to meet Cleo have the Egyptians given a foreign visitor such an enthusiastic welcome.

Small wonder, since Russian loans to Egypt, currently totaling $1.3 billion, are making possible the all-important Aswan High Dam, upon which the economic future of Egypt depends.

Add to this Khrushchev's vocal backing of President Nasser's grandiose pan-Arab, anti-Israel ambitions, and the success of the visit was assured.

Western, particularly U.S., prestige is at low ebb along the Nile. It was not helped any by the vote of a House committee the other day not to give any more money toward rescuing the ancient Abu Simbel temples, which would be submerged by the dam.

MIAMI HERALD: Congressional Green Card?—We will have reached the limits of legal chicanery in this country if the Congressional Record is used to get around the federal law against publicizing the results of a lottery.

Members of the New Hampshire congressional delegation are sitting down with Post Office officials to work out the problem of telling the world about the state's sweepstakes. That's when the idea of using the Congressional Record popped up. A congressman could read the list of winners into the Record and then mail copies out under his free postage privilege.

We have grown accustomed to congressmen who insert fruitcake recipes in the Record to flatter a voter back home, but it will be a sad day when the journal of our government business falls to the level of Joe's Little Green Card that is sold for half a dollar at the race track.

is being penny-wise and ruble-foolish again, as we were when we fudged out of the Aswan project.

All is not black, however. We have learned through sad experience that money does not buy friends. Some of those we have helped the most seem to resent it the most.

Premier Khrushchev may someday find that out, if he ever makes the mistake of reminding the Egyptians how much they owe to him.

Dollars to Asia—Boon or Bane?

(Note — Drew Pearson is on a news-gathering tour of the Middle East. In his absence his column is written by his associate Jack Anderson.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Though it isn't mentioned in the appeals to Congress for more aid, one cause of our setbacks in Southeast Asia has been the distressing fact that American aid has often corrupted and weakened the men it was supposed to build up.

The United States has poured millions into the jungle kingdoms of South Vietnam, Laos, and Thailand. This was supposed to make them bulwarks against the spreading Red tide, which threatens to engulf all Asia.

Youths were taken out of the rice paddies, put into American-made uniforms, and elevated to sudden affluence. With their U.S.-guaranteed pay checks, they were able to buy luxuries they had never known existed: wristwatches, transistor radios, fun in town.

Now there often seems to be more fun than fight in them. They dislike giving up their new living standards for the dangers and discomforts of jungle combat.

The taste of luxury has also corrupted many of their officers. They like to have orderlies serve them tea in bed in the mornings. They prefer to ride in Jeeps on their patrol missions; they disdain the thought of slogging through the jungle in pursuit of guerrillas.

A few have found they can increase their comforts merely by accumulating more of those wonderful dollars. By failing to report casualties and deserters, for example, officers discovered they could pocket the missing men's pay. Others sell U.S. supplies on the black market in the happy conviction that there's more where those came from.

How To Get Rich

The generals and politicians who have handled American aid have also had a dismaying habit of growing rich in their jobs.

The new South Vietnamese leader, Gen. Nguyen Khanh, has found it necessary to shoot embezzlers.

Yet he has been remarkably fortunate in his own finances; indeed, he has boasted that he is worth $10,000,000.

In Laos, the Central Intelligence Agency's protégé, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, has been unsurpassed in opposition to Communism. But he has also partaken generously of the fruits of the Capitalism he upholds.

When the U.S. withdrew military assistance, he found it hard to break old habits. He was appointed Minister of Finance in the new Coalition government. Immediately, he founded a private bank which has benefited from his financial policies.

His former U.S.-paid Army has fared worse. Deprived of dollars, Phoumi resorted to the printing press to produce the salaries for his soldiers. Result: an outbreak of inflation.

Now he is leading the cry for renewed military aid for Laos.

Though U.S. arms are needed to fight off the Reds, those who bear them somehow must be taught to put principles ahead of profits.

LBJ Tackles Traffic

President Johnson has been keeping the phones to Capitol Hill humming with appeals to congressmen to vote for the Rapid-Transit Bill, which would make federal funds available to help U.S. cities improve their commuter service.

The bill should come up for debate in the House next week. Knowing the vote could be close, the President asked his legislative chief, Larry O'Brien, for a list of doubtful congressmen.

"If no one else is going to call them," Johnson grumped, "I will."

He got on the phone to each one, pleading that millions of Americans waste an hour or two a day driving to and from work in congested traffic. Something must be done, he insisted, to speed up the daily commuting and relieve the clogged roads.

The World Today

Slow Ax Poised Over World Leaders

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Time wields a slow ax on the leaders of the world, as the death this week of India's Prime Minister Nehru at 74 showed. He had been India's No. 1 man for 17 years.

The average age of 12 of them is 66 but most are over 70. Only two are under 60: President Johnson, 55, and the president of the United Arab Republic, Gamal Abdel Nasser, 46.

It's their tenacity that sticks out, for a majority of the 12 were either in a leadership position during World War II or close to the center of power at that time.

So it's no wonder if the world seems to have been rocking along on the same road for years or that often what happens seems like a rerun of what happened or was said before.

True, the three giants of the wartime days are gone from the scene, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Josef Stalin, both dead, and Winston Churchill, who stepped down as Britain's prime minister in 1955. He was 80 then and showing his age.

But since the war only the United States and Britain, and for a while France, changed leaders regularly or frequently.

This country has had four presidents since Roosevelt. Britain has had five prime ministers, including Churchill, since he led Britain in the war. Until President Charles de Gaulle took over, French government changes looked like a flapjack contest.

Konrad Adenauer was West Germany's chancellor from 1949 until, at 87, last year he stepped down and Ludwig Erhard, now 67, succeeded him.

Here are the rest of the 12 leaders, with their age and the time they have been in control, even though they haven't always had the same titles:

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev, 70, since 1958, but the boss-man before that. He was one of the right-hand men of Stalin, who died in 1953.

De Gaulle, 73, since 1959. He led the Free French during the war and was president for 18 months after it. Then he went into retirement until the 1950's.

Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek, 76, the head man of China from 1928 until in 1949 the Red Chinese drove him to Formosa. There he set up shop, still considering himself president of all China.

Mao-Tse-tung, 70, leader of the Chinese Communists since 1927 and, although now he doesn't have a government title, he is still Mr. Big on the mainland.

Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 71, the boss of Spain since 1937.

Portugal's Prime Minister Antonio Salazar, a 70-year-old dictator, in control since 1932.

Yugoslavia's President Marshal Tito, 72, leader of the Yugoslavs against the Germans in World War II and in charge from then until now.

Indonesia's President Sukarno, 63, top man there since 1947.

Britain's Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, in office since he succeeded Harold Macmillan in 1963.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Tennis Is Great Game, But Is Also Strenuous

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.,
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Tennis, anyone? Whether you answer yes or no should depend on your general physical fitness. Tennis, you see, is a strenuous game.

If you are over 40 there is no reason why you should not still enjoy this game if you take pains to build up your fitness by observing a few basic principles.

Like handball and badminton, tennis is a game in which sudden bursts of energy accompanied by quick movements are alternated with periods of rest. For the improperly conditioned player these short spurts often result in sprained ankles, twisted knees, torn calf muscles, shoulder and wrist injuries and tennis elbow.

It is advisable, therefore, to spend six or eight weeks before the season in walking, skipping rope and general calisthenics. When you finally step out onto the court ready to go, you should spend 15 or 20 minutes in a leisurely warm-up volley.

Avoid joint injuries by perfecting the technique of following through on each stroke and leave the violent cuts and Learn to let the out-of-reach smashes to the professionals. Learn to let the out-of-reach shots go.

In other words don't try to be a hero at the expense of your heart and your joints. Remember, you are playing a game, not winning a war. In this regard it is always better for your peace of mind, your health and your wallet not to bet on the outcome. You're supposed to be having fun — not trying to make a place on the Olympic team. At 40, it's better to be slightly seedy than seeded.

As with all summer sports, sunburn and heat exhaustion are hazards to be avoided. It is better to play a little every day than to save it up and play several hours on the weekend. If you can't play every day, it is doubly important to get your walk and your exercise on the days when you don't play. The former King of Sweden was still playing at 70 but then he played every day, using indoor courts in bad weather.

When you finish playing it is better to stroll around a bit than to sit down or lie on the grass. Take a tip from the trainers of race horses in this respect. After the stroll, a shower or a short dip in the pool will be most refreshing. And don't forget — when you get too old for tennis, there's always ping pong.

We the Women

Love That Diet Talk!

by Ruth Millett,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Among the "Whys About Women" that Wade Nichols recently told the Los Angeles Advertising Club he would like to have the answers to, was this one: "Why will women buy any magazine that offers a crash diet when they know very well they won't follow it for a minute?"

That one's easy, Mr. Nichols. The women who run out and buy any magazine that offers a new crash diet are looking for a painless way of "reducing—and they'll try anything for a day or two. They're just like the people who are always buying books and reading articles on how to quit smoking."

They seek some easy way to their goal.

The crash dieters don't intend to go on a lifelong calorie-watching journey any more than those looking for a painless way of giving up cigarettes to say "I've had my last cigarette," and stick to it.

So every new scheme for losing pounds without punishment or stopping smoking some fool-proof, painless way attracts the same people. Each time they hear of a new plan for instant success, they fall for it.

It's just wishful thinking, that's all. But women do get a dividend from trying each new crash diet, even if it isn't a lasting weight loss.

The first woman to try a brand-new crash diet in her particular group gets to tell the girls about it. And she knows they'll listen.

For women love to talk about dieting — and the crazier the diet the better, conversationally.

Democrats May Face Picket Lines at Party Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Delegates attending the Democratic National Convention in August may be met by civil rights picket lines on the boardwalk as they enter Convention Hall.

Mass nonviolent demonstrations are being planned by the Congress of Racial Equality in an attempt to point up alleged racial discrimination in the home states of the delegates, mainly those in the South.

CORE is expected to be joined by demonstrators from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and local participants, though not all have formally committed themselves.

James Farmer, national director of CORE, said one of the civil rights demands would be fair and full employment, with a minimum $2 wage and a massive works and training program for jobless persons. He said the Democrats would be urged to give no convention committee chairmanships to Dixiecrats.

Cecil Moore, Negro president of the Philadelphia NAACP chapter, said recently: "We'll work in cooperation with CORE. We can furnish 3,000 or 4,000 pickets if they need them. We can make the line so long and so black they would think it was midnight in midday."

"We can give them enough pickets to block every entrance into Convention Hall that officials would have to recruit policemen from all over the State of New Jersey," he said. "There's a brand new jail in Mays Landing and we certainly could fill it for them."

Mays Landing, some 18 miles to the west, is the Atlantic County seat. The new jail was opened in February.

Maceo Turner, Negro president of the local branch of the NAACP, said his chapter hadn't decided what action it would take this summer but indicated it would join the picket lines. There is no local CORE branch.

Local civil rights participants would attempt to use the national publicity surrounding the convention to spotlight what they have called "discrimination in employment, housing and education" in this southern New Jersey ocean-side resort.

In San Francisco, where the Republicans will hold their national convention in July, the local head of CORE said no plans have been made for demonstrations. The local NAACP chapter replied similarly.

Leonard Reinsch, executive director of the Democratic National Convention, said party officials had been too busy preparing for the national conclave to take the proposed demonstrations under consideration.

Atlantic City Mayor Joseph Altman, in office 20 years and recently re-elected to another four-year term, has repeatedly warned that demonstrations in the city this summer could ruin the community's resort season, causing a serious blow to both its economy and prestige.

Altman has also said on many occasions "Atlantic City is the most integrated city in the United States." That statement has been disputed by both city and state civil rights leaders.

The other little girl looked a bit puzzled and finally she replied thoughtfully, "No, I don't think it ever had any hair." —H. L.

Great Poet's Thoughts On Memorial Day

By ROBERT COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Because he is a poet, Carl Sandburg can draw from the world little things — and big things — and make them sharp, powerful, vivid.

Because he is a man, a rough-hewn product of the Middle West and a part of the American people, he can talk with Americans and for them, not to them, not from the poet's usual detached viewpoint.

This may be why critics call Sandburg America's greatest living poet.

Although now, at 86, he lives quietly with his wife, Lillian, and tends his 34 purebred goats on a 242-acre farm in the mountain region near Flat Rock, N. C., he has not lost touch with Americans. Perhaps, therefore, his thoughts and reminiscences add a special relevancy to this Memorial Day, to any Memorial Day.

"I try to follow world events closely," he told Newspaper Enterprise Assn. and this newspaper recently, "and, on this Memorial Day, I think we have much to be thankful for — and much to remember.

"There are no loud clashes in the world right now and I think we can all properly hope for peace. Things are looking up."

But if Memorial Day is a time for looking into the future, Sand-

Now Its For Survival

'To Insure Promptness' Is Where 'Tip' Started

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is the custom of tipping.

There was a time when the giving of a tip was simply a gracious gesture to reward good service. That was when the word tip was supposed to mean "to insure promptness."

Today a more likely meaning is "to insure survival." If you don't tip, you don't get anything done. You are subject to sabotage. The tip today is often not a bounty but a kind of forced tribute, a bribe to avoid unpleasantness.

Tipping has become a field of such importance that the government should consider regulating it, to bring some kind of order out of the present chaos.

Whom to tip?

Formerly one generally tipped only waiters, bellhops, shoe-shine boys and maybe the barber. You could go for days or even weeks without tipping anyone at all.

Those simple days are long gone.

Now at times the world seems a forest of outstretched waiting palms. You tip the janitor, the mailman, the window washer, the television repairman, the fortune teller, the theater ticket broker, the grocery boy, your hospital nurse, your favorite bartender, the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker.

A safe rule of thumb to follow, in fact, is to tip everybody you come into contact with except your boss, employees of the Internal Revenue Service, generals in the Army or Air Force and admirals.

How much to tip?

This problem worries more people than the international crisis. A 10 per cent tip on a restaurant bill used to be completely satisfactory. Then it crept up to 15 per cent. Now some waiters will spill soup down your back unless they feel you're good for 20 per cent.

Those in the know say that the most generous tippers are professional comedians and racetrack winners.

The poorest tippers are supposed to be baseball players, self-made millionaires, and visitors from small towns in the South or Midwest, who are said to tip only on the second Wednesday of any week.

But he continues to cast his lot with films, and he has no apologies for his work. Those who claim he is wasting his considerable talent will no doubt renew their charge after release of his next film, "A Bedtime Story," a wild, bawdy farce.

"Let 'em," the actor said unconcernedly. "They've been saying that ever since I did 'Desire'."

Brando, looking youthful in a hunch haircut (he turned 40 last month), was in his richly furnished dressing room at Universal. He talked about a variety of matters, though not, per his request, civil rights or his personal life.

Of "Bedtime Story," he said he had a ball making it, especially in the company of David Niven. He saw the first cut and thought it funny, but considered the final version not so. "Well, you can't win them all," he shrugged.

But he conceded he may be too close to the film, and now the previews have indicated to Universal that it will be a crowd-pleasing moneymaker.

Jurors Wait While Point Is Contested

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Jurors in a spy trial were told they may have to spend all of today in their hotel rooms while attorneys argue a point of law.

George John Gessner, 28, is being tried in U. S. District Court on a charge of giving atomic secrets to Russia from Dec. 9, 1960 to Jan. 4, 1961.

Just before the close of Thursday's session, Ernest J. Rice, chief defense counsel, asked for a conference of attorneys with the judge.

After a long discussion at the bench, Judge Arthur J. Stanley Jr. told the jurors they would have to stay at the hotel until the legal issue is settled.

"I am afraid that you may have to stay there all day, from information supplied by the attorneys," the judge said. "This matter must be heard outside the presence of the jury."

William V. Benton Jr., of El Paso, Tex., a former Army counter-intelligence officer, was on the witness stand for the government when Rice asked for the conference.

Benton testified he first talked with Gessner April 3, 1961, and saw him about 19 times from that date until June 7, 1961.

Several other witnesses had testified they saw Gessner in Mexico City during December, 1960 and January, 1961.

The government contends that Gessner, former nuclear weapons maintenance specialist at Ft. Bliss, Tex., made two trips to Mexico City and talked with Russians at their embassy there.

The trial is expected to last more than a month.

Gessner's mother, Mrs. Hazel E. Raymond of Melbourne, Fla., is scheduled to be a defense witness.

Gruber Role Success For Ballantine

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's nice, but it's also sort of sad," said the tall, lanky fellow with thinning hair. "After 25 years as the Amazing Ballantine suddenly I'm Lester Gruber. And 95 per cent of the people don't even remember all the years on the Ed Sullivan Show."

Carl — the Amazing Ballantine — may be rueful about the recent strange shift in his career, but it is a story with a happy ending.

Over the years, Ballantine built a popular and highly profitable vaudeville act, appearing in magnificently tailored evening clothes and with all the sweeping gestures of the stage magician, but doing tricks that turned into minor disasters—rabbits refused to emerge from top hats, ladies refused to be sawed in half, the wrong card always popped out of the pack.

Then something tragic started to happen to vaudeville and Ballantine — who does not like to play night clubs—started seriously to look around.

"When McHale's Navy came up, there were only eight weeks of vaudeville a year left in this country, coast to coast. I have to work 40 weeks a year to make the money I earn on this TV show," he said.

Show business always knew him as a deft comedian who pulled laughs with fumbling magic tricks. Thus he had some acting offers, including a regular part in "Car 54" which he reluctantly turned down for the ABC Navy comedy.

"I read for the Gruber role," he recalled. "I was just one of about 40 guys looking for the part. They called me four days later to tell me I had it."

Carl plays a torpedoman with the instincts of a con man.

"It's a cinch," he said gleefully. "I am Gruber—Gruber is me. Other actors may study a part and decide one of 30 different ways to play a character. Me I'm myself. In fact, sometimes I go to the director and tell him my lines are ones Gruber would never say. And he tells me, okay, to rewrite them."

But to Ballantine the most incredible fact is that few of the "McHale's Navy" fans ever connect him with the magician most of them have certainly seen at some time over the recent years.

Some, in fact, have informed "Gruber" how much a magician named Ballantine resembles him.

NBC has offered to underwrite—"up to $25,000"—one-third of the cost of an outside study designed to improve methods of nominating and voting in the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences annual "Emmy Awards." Incoming ATAS president, writer Rod Serling, said he would present the offer to the organization's board of trustees for action.

Wants Reports On Information Given Reporters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon's information chief has issued a new order designed to give him greater knowledge about which defense officials are talking with reporters and what they are talking about.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester told a reporter today his order is not designed to tighten control or to inhibit conversations between newsmen and military and civilian officials.

He called it "one way of keeping up" with what is of interest to newsmen and as an aid in "showing what fields should be exploited more." Sylvester said one of his jobs is to stimulate ideas.

Nonetheless, reporters have found that past orders of a similar nature have tended to make many news sources cautious and reluctant to talk freely.

The new Sylvester order, dated May 18, calls for weekly reports to his office "on interviews granted by departmental personnel at the seat of government—including the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The reports, to be submitted by the chiefs of information of the three services, list the dates of interviews, the name of the interviewer and his affiliation, the person interviewed, the subject discussed and a notation as to whether an information officer was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Schieder, 319 South Hancock, have returned from a two week trip to Nassau and the Bahamas and a tour of Florida's east coast. The trip, the couple's first outside the continental USA, was won at KDRO radio station's recent open house.

Three hundred passengers, including 35 Florida high school seniors, were aboard the boat which made the one day sail from Florida to the Bahamas. Shipboard entertainment included dancing and a floor show.

Upon arrival, the island was toured. The following day, the Schieders visited wharfs where clams and fish were being dressed. Their arrival coincided with the flame tree season, similar to dogwood festival time in Missouri.

BIG FRONT ROW—The cars to beat in the Indianapolis 500 Auto Race all sit on the front row. Qualifying speeds determine the position in the line-up at the start. All three are the new, light, Ford-powered, rear-engined racers which require fewer pit stops. Jim Clark (top) took the pole position with a speed of 158.828 miles an hour. Bobby Marshall (center) was next with a 158.562 average. Roger Ward (bottom) qualified at 156.406.

Expect Biggest Crowd

Big Effort At Indianapolis Led By Clark

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Scot Jimmy Clark, world road-racing champion, will charge across the starting line of the 48th Indianapolis 500-mile auto race Saturday, determined to break a string of American victories going back to Howard Wilcox in 1919.

His effort may bring out the biggest paying crowd ever drawn by an American sporting event, upwards of 250,000.

Italian Dario Resta, in a French Peugeot, was the last foreign winner in 1916 before World War I closed the old 2½-mile racing oval for two years. The foreign factory teams never came back in force.

Clark smashed qualifying records in a new British-American hybrid car, a dagger-slim green Lotus built by Colin Chapman of London and powered by a new Ford special racing engine mounted over the back wheels. It's a much improved version of the car in which Clark finished a close second to Parnelli Jones last year.

Ford, in the biggest corporate effort to win the race in modern times, provided the new overhead cam engine to seven of the cars starting Saturday. Only Ford engineers have been permitted to touch the screaming beauties.

Rodger Ward, twice winner of the 500 and no worse than fourth in the last five Memorial Day classics, may have the biggest challenge to the three Lotus-Fords in a rear-engine Ford built by A. J. Watson, creator of six 500 winning cars, including Jones' 1963 Agajanian Special.

Ward was third-fastest qualifier and will share the front row at the start with Clark and Bobby Marshall, who reached 160 m.p.h. in practice with a '63 Lotus powered by one of the new Ford engines.

Jones had to settle for the second row in his aging Watson roadster. He had an alternate new rear-engine car, but it had bugs and was parked for this year.

Two other former winners in the field are A. J. Foyt, defending U.S. Auto Club big-car champion, and Troy Ruttman, the youngest winner in 500 history when he took the 1952 event at the age of 22. Foyt will be the No. 5 starter and Ruttman No. 18. Both will drive conventional Offy roadsters.

Ward will be starting for the 14th straight year, at the age of 43. Eddie Johnson, 45, will start for the 11th time in another Thompson-Ford.

Walt Hansen of Bedminster, N.J., one of seven first-time starters, will be one of the senior drivers at 44. A noted sports car racer, he is rated a genuine contender in a new Hufaker rear-engine Offy owned by Kjell Ovale, San Francisco sportsman.

There will be nationwide television of the long, noisy show for the first time but it will be on closed circuit to about 175 theaters and arenas.

The speedway management reported record advance sales, which it never discloses. There are 155,000 seats in the mammoth grandstands and infield bleachers, and almost as many more speed fans swarm through the 537-acre grounds and sit on parked autos and trucks.

The speaker also gave a detailed run down on individual player's capabilities and the program of development of these characteristics to provide the Missouri Tigers with competitive material.

Arrangements for the program were worked out by Louis R. Hughes, Jr. and John R. Van Dyne, alumni of the University.

Little League Still Needs Managers

Three more managers for Little League baseball teams are still needed. Paul Klover, player agent for the league, has announced.

Klover said the managers are needed for one A team and for two B teams.

Anyone interested in managing one of these squads should contact Ken Melton, league president, at TA 6-1190, or Paul Klover at TA 6-9615.

Weekend Fishing Forecast

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Best bet for rod and reel fishermen this weekend will be the lakes, the state Conservation Commission reported today.

Many of the streams are murky to muddy because of recent rains although some are producing good catches of channel cat and other catfish on limlines and trotlines.

The trout areas are producing good catches.

Here are the midweek conditions by region:

Rivers muddy but furnishing some channel cat and flathead catfish. Lakes and ponds clear. Fishing fair to good for bass, bluegill and crappie.

North Central — Rivers high and muddy. Set lines taking fair catches of channels and carp. Lakes and ponds clear to murky and producing fair catches of black bass and bluegill.

Phillies Lose to Pirates; Giants Win Over St. Louis

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

There were 8,649 fans in Forbes Field, but Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch noticed a Face in the scoreboard.

So he protested.

National League headquarters now has a rather delicate decision to make.

Here's what happened Thursday night as the Phillies lost to Pittsburgh 6-5 and dropped into second place behind the San Francisco Giants, who defeated St. Louis 2-1 on Willie Mays' 18th homer.

Mauch protested as the Phillies came to bat in the sixth inning, complaining that he had spotted a face in the left field scoreboard. Mauch said it belonged to ElRoy Face.

Knowing full well that faces in scoreboards often steal signs, Mauch said this Face had no business there.

The Pirates' relief specialist admitted he was in the scoreboard.

"I went there just before the first Philadelphia hitter came up in the sixth," he said. And, said Face, he had a reason for being in the scoreboard:

He was using the rest room facilities there.

The case now goes to the National League jury, Warren Giles presiding.

While the Phillies and Giants were exchanging place in the standings, the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati played the longest game of the season — with neither team winning. It ended in a 2-2 tie, called because of curfew after 17 innings, and will have to be replayed.

Elsewhere in the NL, a suicide squeeze bunt by Nellie Fox gave Houston the tie-breaking run in a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee and the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets 2-0 on Billy Williams' 11th homer and Larry Jackson's three-hit pitching.

In the only American League game scheduled, Kansas City capitalized on four Chicago errors and handed Juan Pizarro his first loss by beating the White Sox 4-1.

After the early skirmishing, including Mauch's protest, the Phillies took a 5-4 lead in the eighth on Roy Sievers' sacrifice fly. The Pirates tied it in their half of the inning on a homer by Willie Stargell, then won in the ninth on a walk to Jim Pagan and singles by Stargell and Dick Schofield.

Curt Simmons, now 6-3, scored the Cardinal run in the fifth inning on Curt Flood's double and had the Giants blanked on five hits until the eighth. Cap Peterson then led off with a walk, and waited two outs before Mays connected. Mays' shot was touched by a fan in the stands and the ball was knocked back onto the field but the umpires waved him home.

The Dodgers and Reds were scoreless until the 12th. The Dodgers scored two against Cincinnati starter Jim Maloney on his throwing error and a run-

Softball Meet Set For Sunday

Rainy weather forced postponement until Sunday of the first training session for Sedalia girl softball enthusiasts. Paul Klover, who is handling arrangements for the program, said the girls will practice at 1:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon on the playing field located north of Liberty Park.

Klover said despite the wet diamond, Thursday morning 21 girls came out and a short practice was held. Names of 47 girls who have voiced interest in the softball program have been obtained by Klover.

Girl's softball will come under the auspices of the Khoury League girl's softball division of the George Khoury Association of Baseball Leagues, Inc., St. Louis. The present plans are two separate leagues, with girls 7 to 10 being assigned to the Petite Class, and those 13 and under, to the Chic class. The number of teams will be determined by the turnout of girls.

The scheduled games will be held on the playing field adjacent to Liberty Park and will start each evening at 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, with the first game on June 8.

The Petite class pitching distance will be 25 feet, with 40 feet between the bases. The Chic class pitching distance will be 33 feet, with 55 feet between the bases.

Anyone desiring information concerning other details or wishing to register a girl may contact Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klover, TA 6-9615 or TA 6-7973.

Cape Kennedy Draws Tourists

EDITOR'S NOTE — Cape Kennedy is rapidly becoming the East's biggest tourist attraction, and it's free. Here's a trip through a new world of launch pads, gantries and astronauts with a Sunday crowd of rubbernecks.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)
—"Disneyland East," as comedian Mort Sahl once called this improbable popping off point into outer space, is fast becoming one of the nation's leading tourist attractions.

The tour continues past Central Control, where the range safety officer fingers the world's most sensitive panic button, the destruct button that can stop a missile in mid-flight in a split second. Past Hangar S, where the astronauts have their living quarters prior to a manned shot and where they suit up on shot day. Past the low prehistoric looking mounds where the highly explosive solid fuels are stored. Past the home of one of the world's largest X-rays, used to seek out flaws in missile fuel tanks. Past the old Mercury Control building, where Shorty Powers held forth on the microphone and where the engineers and scientists lit up their victory cigars, an old cape custom, when an astronaut safely made it back from outer space.

If he looks closely, the tourist might see a shiny missile standing on its launch pad, but he won't see a missile go off.
Overtime rates being what they are, the cape doesn't do much Sunday shooting and when it does the spaceport is closed to visitors. Most people are content with seeing Pad 14, Hangar
S and Mercury Control.

The John F. Kennedy Space Center is also proving to be the high point of a pleasant Sunday drive for thousands of senior citizens who move to Florida to live out their retirement years.
The holiday atmosphere of Sunday on the cape is further heightened by the number of cars that go through the gates pulling boat and house trailers

WORK FOR THE FUTURE — Laborers toil on the granite cliffs along the Nile river in the Aswan High Dam area. The dam will create a 314-mile-long Lake Nasser whose waters will provide year-round irrigation and power for Egypt's industrialization.

and by the tourists who do their sightseeing in bathing suits and sun dresses.

The tourist boom at Cape Kennedy is having a pleasant economic fallout on the nearby town of Cocoa Beach, a space age frontier town with gaudy motels with names like the Polaris, the Satellite and the Vanguard and bars that serve "jet juice" cocktails made with 190 proof alcohol. Accommodations are hard to come by throughout most of the year in Cocoa Beach, especially when a big launch is in the offing. On weekdays, the tourists have a fair chance of watching a missile shot from the beach, if they know where to look.

Since Christmas more than 200,000 tourists have taken the tour through Cape Kennedy.
Rumor has it that if business gets any better, Congress might ask the Air Force to start charging admission to pay off the moon shot. Even at a buck a head, it would be a bargain.

Each Sunday thousands of visitors from all over the country line up in their cars, waiting for the chance to parade past the cape's towering gantries and busy launching pads. They wait for hours in the broiling Florida sun to view the hallowed spot whence John H. Glenn, Jr., Walter M. Schirra Jr., L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and their other space heroes catapulted to glory, the Jw concrete building from which emanated the doomsday delivery of Lt. Col. John (Shorty) Powers, the famous voice of Mercury Control, and the various complexes whence Ranger, Echo, Tiros, Telstar and the other famous satellites found their way out among the stars.

Since Cape Kennedy opened its gates to visitors last December, "bird watching" has become almost as popular a sport in Florida as jai-alai and bikini watching. On an average Sunday afternoon, more than 2,500 cars, 65 per cent of them from out of state, stream onto the cape for an hour-long tour that grows in popularity each week
despite some discouraging ground rules.

Visitors to the cape cannot leave their cars under any circumstances.
They must maintain a speed of 25 miles an hour. They cannot stop.

While waiting for the gates to open at 1 p.m., many of the visitors spread a picnic lunch by the roadside.

Some who get there as early as 9 a.m. to sweat out the line, dip a fishing pole into the pacid bays that lap at the edges of the narrow road leading onto the cape, while others pass the time in rapt enjoyment of some of the world's most fascinating scenery.

Where else can you see the atomic submarine Henry Clay steaming into Port Canaveral, just across the road, to take on a Polaris missile, while the local shrimp fleet chugs home in ancient boats followed by a flight formation of hungry pelicans? Where else can you see an alligator slithering past a sign that says, "Danger Highly Explosive Solid Propellants," and a long legged great blue heron fishing for his breakfast in the lee of the USS Observation Island, a Polaris launching surface vessel?

But the tour itself is the main attraction. It winds down narrow roads with exotic names like "ICBM Road" and "Flight Control Road" past wonders too fantastic to contemplate were it not for an excellent little booklet that the Air Force guard at the gate distributes to each visiting carload. Illustrated with pictures of the cape's key buildings and complexes, the booklet provides a point by point guide for the tour and helps anticipate some of the questions that junior would ask if he had the chance.

Cape Kennedy, a 25-mile square spit of sand and palm-trees to palms between the Atlantic Ocean and the Banana River, is as everyone knows the main launching area for the Atlantic Missile Range, the government's big shooting gallery that extends 10,000 miles down into the Indian Ocean. Practically the first thing the tourist sees after rolling through the control gate is the ball-shaped domes of Azusa Mark II, which is the Noel Coward of radar systems.

This one is so sophisticated it can track a missile for 2,000 miles and be accurate to within 40 feet at a distance of 150 miles.

Next into view come the antenna fields of the cape's complex communications system, then the two-story LOX plant, which to the surprise of some Florida tourists has nothing to do with bagels. The cape manufactures its own LOX, liquid oxygen, used in such missiles as the Atlas and Thor, to keep from having to transport it over the highway at very cold — minus 297 Fahrenheit — temperatures.

After passing the no longer used testing area for the Army's Pershing ballistic missiles and the assembly area for the Navy's Polaris, the tourists wind their way past the old Army Redstone area.

Just beyond the Jupiter, Thor and Minuteman launch sites stands a gray concrete building with a sloping green roof that should be of genuine interest to space age antiquarians. Here the Model T's of the missile program, the Mace, Snark and Matador cruise missiles, were launched into the atmosphere, more or less like pilotless aircraft, in the early 1950s.

Around the next bend looms the black and white striped 165-foot tall Cape Canaveral light-house. Built in 1868, it remains a baffling structure, at least to some people. According to the Air Force guide book, "more than one hapless newcomer to the cape, invited to watch a missile launch, has kept his eyes glued to the lighthouse while the real missile lifted off from an entirely different area."

Turning into ICBM Road, the tourist finds himself in the heart of the cape's most exciting area.
This is the home of the big ones: Centaur, Atlas and Titan.
Down this road lies Pad 14, the Times Square of space stations, whence John Glenn, Scott Carpenter, Wally Shirra and Gordon Cooper took their celebrated journeys to the stars. Just next door, Ranger took a flyer at the moon and Mariner dashed off toward the planet Venus.
Further down the road, the Titan launch pads are being readied for the first of the two-man Gemini flights this fall. Just beyond them loom the 375-foot high Saturn gantries, higher than a 30-story building, which will play a major role in the American assault on the moon.

Allan Jaffe Is Reviving Orleans Jazz

By SID MOODY

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Jazz had a garbled, chop sueyish parentage with strains of blues, bands, booze and bordellos all playing a part.

It is having a second coming now in the city of its birth and this time there's no doubt about the mother, father and midwife. They are all in the person of a young business school graduate from Pennsylvania with a face his wife says looks like a kewpie doll.

His name is Allan Jaffe. He is 28 and white. His musicians are ancient and Negro.

Jaffe is operator of a ramshackle art gallery and music hall called Preservation Hall, deep in the wicked French Quarter. It's a living museum and antique shop, about the only place in the world you can still hear what remains of the musicians who gave birth to jazz.

These aren't the candy-striped types in straw hats or beards who play a spirited, imitative music called Dixieland. These are the originals, men whose instruments have long been gathering dust while they struggled for a living at whatever they could — longshoremen, farmhands, or just drifting drunks.

These are the ancestors of Thelonius Monk, Dizzy Gillespie, the Modern Jazz Quartet. Maybe, in a way, even the Beatles. The music they play is scarcely changed from the turn of the century.

The true original New Orleans jazz has had sporadic revivals and there are a number of records of the ancient around. That was one reason Jaffe and his wife, Sandra, came to New Orleans. They wanted to hear the music live. It was nearly dead except for the few efforts of the New Orleans Jazz Club and people like art dealer Larry Borenstein.

Borenstein used to have some old musicians drop into his gallery from time to time to play but there was nothing organized — or profitable — about it. Then in summer, 1961, jazz authority Bill Russell, Dick Allen who had a Ford Foundation grant to study jazz, Jaffe and several others organized the New Orleans Society for the Preservation of Traditional Jazz and began putting on nightly performances from whichever musicians were available.

"The society dissolved in about two weeks — par for jazz societies," said Jaffe. But he decided to keep things going as well as he could. Jaffe, working in a department store, and his wife, working in market research, made up the loss from their salaries.

"When I went into the hall, I said I was willing to lose $1,000. When I was $1,500 in the red, I guess that was the lowest point," Jaffe said.

Borenstein rented Jaffe his studio, which has been a residence, restaurant and tavern for sea captains. The floors slump with age. The plaster is tired from too much living. There is no admission as such but Sandra Jaffe sits by the wrought iron gate with a wicker basket filled with dollar bills and reminds any one who does not feed the kitty that it's there.

If you're lucky, you can sit on benches or a couple of veteran kitchen chairs. Most folks stand. Paintings of the musicians line the walls: top price $1,000 and up. But that's Borenstein's business not Jaffe's; who, although he's a graduate of the Wharton School of Business, has a monumental disdain for commercialism. He has never advertised and his only sign is a battered trombone case with brass lettering hanging over the alleyway that leads to the hall.

But word gets around, so much so that the Jaffes are able to live off the gate and have given up their jobs. But what's more important to him is that the musicians now are able to live — and play.

Being den mother to musicians in their 60s, 70s and even 80s is not taught at Wharton or anywhere else. You play it by ear. For one thing you have to find the musicians.

Clarinetist George Lewis, trombonist Jim Robinson, and others had been playing on the road off and on. But even Lewis, as skinny as his clarinet and not much taller, has had to work as a longshoreman to get by.

"Papa John" French, who plays bass and is 89, is a Jaffe discovery. "I'd read about him and finally found him."

Two Englishmen were responsible for finding Chinee Foster. They'd heard him on an old recording and wondered what had happened to him.

"They hung around Congo Square for two weeks. Finally some one decided they weren't bill collectors and pointed Chinee out. He was drunk," said Jaffe. "We sobered him up and gave him some sticks to see if he could still play. He could. He lived with us for a while, kind of preventive medicine, and I told him if he'd stay sober two weeks I'd get him a set of drums."

Chinee did and Jaffe kept his word, buying the set from a former drummer in an all-girl band who had retired to run a gift shop.

Jaffe also resurrected pianist Billie Pierce and her blind trumpet-playing husband, DeDe, who had been playing for practically nothing at all-night joints. He paid their union dues, shelled out for repairs to the roof of their house and they are one of his star attractions, and are paying him back gradually.

Jaffe has bought a number of other instruments including a trombone for Louis Nelson who agreed to go on the wagon if Jaffe could guarantee him a certain amount of work. Nelson, too, is paying Jaffe back. Behind every musician there has to be a set of teeth. This can be a problem when aged musicians are involved. Jaffe solved it by reaching an agreement with an inexpensive dental clinic.

"The dentist is a jazz fan, I've bought ten or eleven sets of false teeth, I'd say."

Over 200 musicians have played at Preservation Hall since its beginning, about 70 regularly. They have their own ways of expressing their appreciation for what Jaffe has done. Some do it simply by playing as best they can. Maybe George Lewis expressed his when he talked Jaffe out of putting the musicians up on a platform instead of on the same level as their audience, only a few feet away.

"No," he said. "That way we'd be too far from the people."

There's a strong rapport between the people and the musicians. The people may be convention-going doctors and their mink-stoled wives who never heard authentic New Orleans jazz but drifted in from Pat O'Brien's bar next door still carrying the towering pink drinks he serves.

Or it may be a ragged young artist who appreciates sincerity in art whether or not the skill may have become rusted.

Or it may be a college student who has heard and loved all the records and is hearing the music live for the first time, his leg pumping fiercely to the rhythm, a half smile on his lips.

It may be one of the musicians himself — Jaffe's is about the only truly integrated place in the quarter — warmed at having a place where he can still hear the music of his youth and talk with interested strangers about the men who are gone.

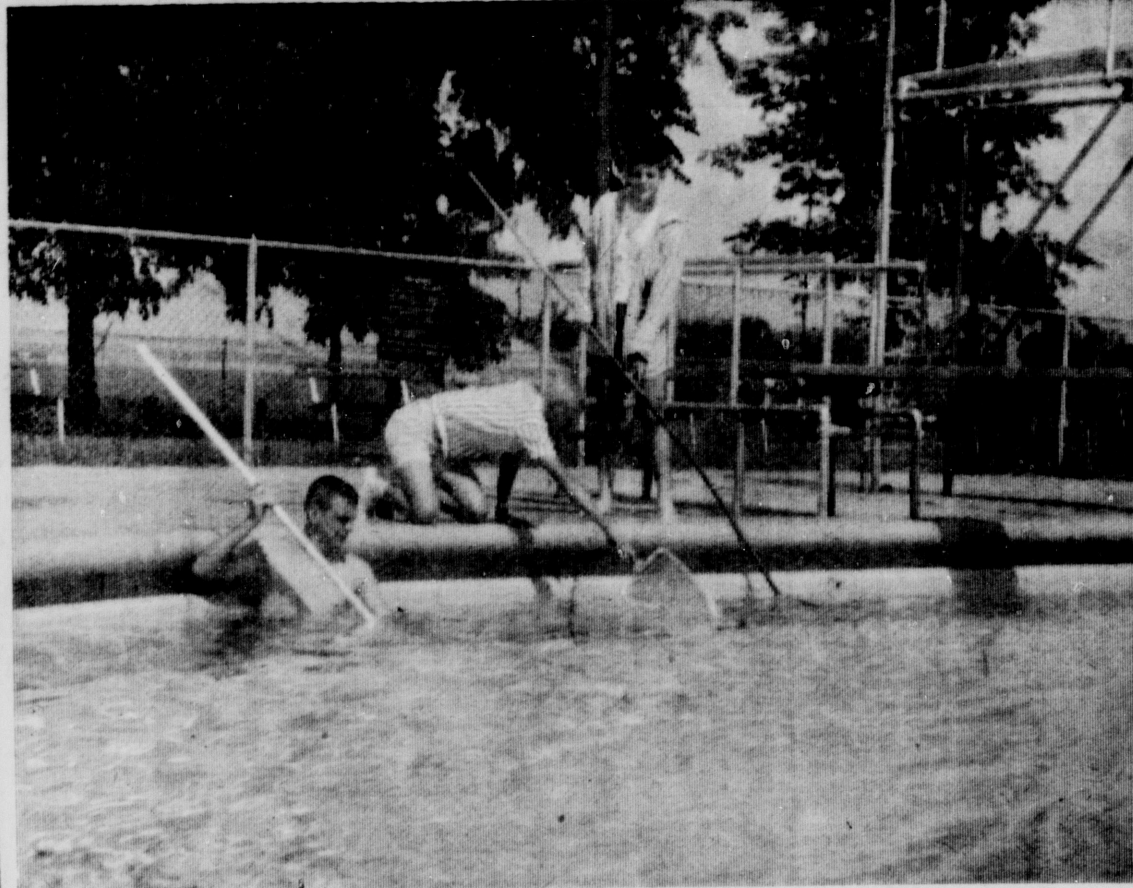

It may be Sandra Jaffe in the alleyway with her basket of bills hoping "the music never stops." Or her husband sitting in on sousaphone, his cheeks puffed out like a chipmunk. "You keep practicing," Jaffe, you keep practicing," one of the band shouts to him.

Then the music stops and the people file out. They may or may not remember what they've heard. A man from Georgia once dropped $20 in the kitty on his way out in answer to his own question to the Jaffes: "I like what you're doing, what can I do to help?"

When you see them, musician and audience, from all over the nation, from all walks of life, of all ages, sharing this old honest music, you, too, hope it never stops. But it will. There's no next generation coming up for New Orleans jazz.

'Secret' Town Scores

DETROIT (AP) — A mailed press release from the Small Business Administration's Detroit regional office Thursday quoted Robert F. Phillips, regional director, as announcing selection of the "Michigan small business of the year" in connection with "Small Business Week."

The second paragraph said: "The business selected is in an Upper Peninsula town of 2,600 where 25 townspeople help the firm process building studs from hemlock and balsam logs."

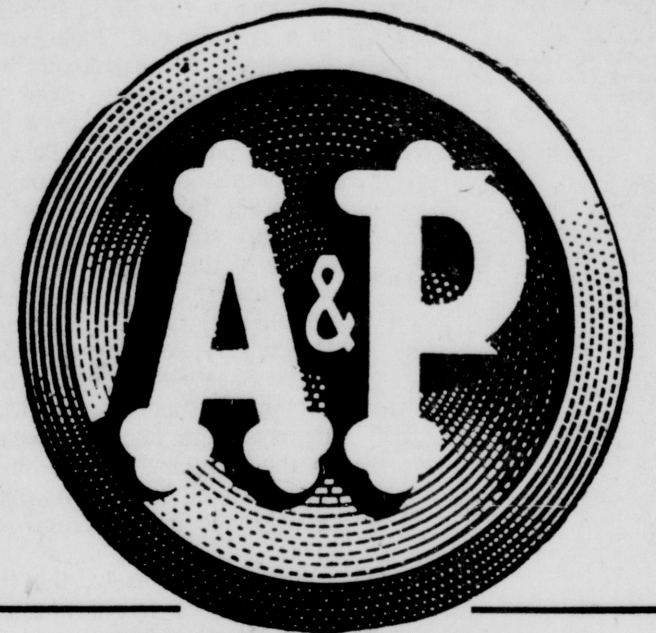

The handout did not name the company nor the town. A reporter, suspecting a goof, telephoned.

Ambulance Serv. TA 6-8000

"We're not allowed to tell you the name of the company or town," said Bob Layman, chief of the investment division. "That's policy given us by Washington. Sorry, I can't help you."

No Gimmicks, Just the Facts

By JOAN CROSBY

Washington — (NEA) — Television has been blamed for turning political conventions into shows. But David Brinkley says it isn't so.

"If a convention is a show, it is theirs, not ours. It was a show before we got there with our cameras. However, since television began covering conventions, they have become better shows. They have speeded them up. Speeches run shorter — and that's a blessing. If a politician can't say what he has in mind in 20 minutes, it's not worth saying at all."

Brinkley, with Chet Huntley, Frank McGee and most of NBC's domestic news staff, will be covering both the Republican convention from San Francisco in July and the Democratic convention from Atlantic City in August. It is expected the network will rely on the strong pull of Huntley and Brinkley, and present their coverage in the same manner as past conventions. And this pleases David.

"There is a tendency towards gimmickness in the television news business," he says in a tone that lets you know unmistakably that he disapproves. "For instance, the hiring of big-name non-journalists purely for the publicity value. I can't imagine any newspaper doing it."

"Everybody's always trying to think of some gimmick or trick that will surprise the opposition. But covering the conventions is a journalism job, and the only way to do it is the standard way."

Brinkley paused and smiled. "So far as I know, we are not doing anything gimmicky. I hope NBC doesn't have any tricks they haven't told me about. There's always a lot of elaborate planning in New York, but I'm not in on it. I just show up at the conventions, and on election night."

Brinkley doesn't feel that the public will reach the saturation point through the three networks' obsession with bringing every phase of pre-convention and pre-election happenings to the television audience.

"The public tolerates an awful lot, mainly by not paying attention. They either care or they don't care. They tune in on network over another mostly through habit.

"The rest of that business about whose computer put out the correct result first is something they don't really care about."

"In 1960, CBS called the result wrong. But they forget about that now. If we had done it, we would have forgotten about it too — or tried to make others forget it."

The last David Brinkley's Journal special of the season is scheduled for June. It's called "Election Year in an Average Town."

"I think it might be good. What I hope it will be is the anatomy of the average American small town. We got the town — Salem, N. J. — through the Gallup Poll. It's got a population of 9,000. It's below the Mason-Dixon Line so there's a Southern feeling to it. The people always vote for the winners, and they are completely average in racial percentages, religion, income and jobs."

David and a crew spent time in Salem, until he was spotted and had to get out of sight. Being recognized, he says, is a serious handicap.

Troops Called Out

Violence In Michigan City

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP) — National Guardsmen moved in Thursday to end strike-born violence in this southeastern Michigan city of 7,629.

Gov. George W. Romney called out the troops in declaring "a state of public emergency" in which he ordered the strike-bound Essex Wire Corp. plant shut down and its guards disarmed.

The governor's action came in the wake of violence in which 250 to 300 persons besieged the Hillsdale County Jail and smashed many of its windows with rocks Wednesday night. The mob followed policemen who arrested five at the Essex picket line.

It was the latest violent incident in a series erupting since the International Union of Electrical Workers called its 180 members out of the Essex plant three months ago Thursday in support of its endeavor to win a contract.

A plant guard was shot and wounded, another guard clubbed with a baseball bat, and a union picket slashed Tuesday night. The guards, escorting imported nonunion workers with which Essex has kept operating, were forced off a highway at nearby Jonesville.

Sixty state policemen and sheriff's deputies from adjacent counties answered calls for help Wednesday night from beleaguered officers in the mob-threatened jail.

This show of force and release on bond of those arrested finally quieted the crowd, but the situation remained ignitable.

Mayor C. Aubrey Paul urged Romney to declare martial law, and within three hours the governor declared "a state of public emergency." Under it local officials remain in charge of government.

First of the 230 Guardsmen called to duty arrived about 1 p.m.

Motorists Swarm Roads For Holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — Motorists began swarming the highways late Thursday for the first of 1964's three long warm-weather holiday weekends.

Although Memorial Day is observed officially on Saturday, many employers who normally close their businesses on Saturdays gave their workers a holiday on Friday. School principals did the same for the youngsters.

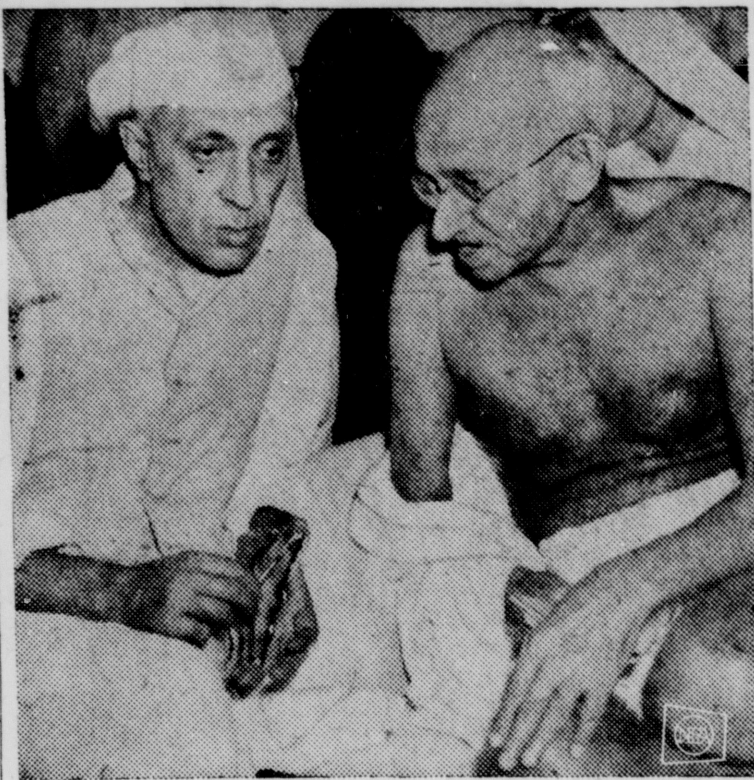

A similar weekend is planned for July when Independence Day also will fall on Saturday. Labor Day always is observed on Monday, affording a three-day weekend.

The National Safety Council predicted that more than 83 million motor vehicles in the United States will be on the move sometime over the Memorial Day weekend and will roll up about 8.5 million miles of travel.

With the increased driving volume came a corresponding rise in the hazards of motoring. The council estimated accidents could kill between 410 and 490 persons between 6 p.m. local time Thursday night and midnight Sunday.

If the toll were held to the lower figure it would be under the total of 418 deaths counted by The Associated Press in the nonholiday weekend of the same length May 14-17. The survey was made two weeks ago to provide a normal traffic death figure for comparison with that of a holiday weekend.

The record high traffic toll for a three-day observance of Memorial Day was 371 in 1958, the record low 204 in 1948.

'May He Be An Immortal'

People Throng To Nehru's Funeral

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — plain white sheet. The head was on a pillow.

Flames of a sandalwood bier consumed the body of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru Thursday before a vast and restless throng of mourners who shouted in the ancient Hindu ritual: "May he be an immortal!"

Hundreds of thousands of persons, massed in all directions as far as the eye would see, witnessed the ceremonial end of the architect of modern India under a setting sun at Rajghat, the pyre of kings, beside the holy Jumna River.

Though official estimates were lacking, one newspaper guessed 1½ million were on hand in final tribute to the wealthy, London-educated Brahmin aristocrat who devoted much of his life to bettering the lot of India's downtrodden, illiterate masses. He died Wednesday at 74 of a heart attack.

Frenzied grief was so great that two persons were killed and six injured in a stampede outside the prime minister's official residence before the body was moved away on a gun carriage pulled by 60 men.

Others were trampled during the six-mile procession to the river—which took 3½ hours—and police had to use their clubs to restrain Indians crowding in upon the pyre.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, representing the United States, narrowly escaped injury in two brushes with the press, unruly mourners.

Rusk stood near the gun carriage when it arrived with Nehru's body. The crowd surged forward and thrust him roughly aside. Rusk was caught again in a later crowd crush. Then police moved in with clubs to protect him and other dignitaries.

The site was near the spot where Mohandas K. Gandhi was cremated in 1948. Gandhi, Nehru's chief in the revolutionary campaigning that led to India's independence from Britain 17 years ago, was assassinated by a Hindu fanatic.

Military officers lifted Nehru's body to their shoulders, walked along a newly spread carpet of red earth and mounted seven steps to the sandalwood resting place.

Under watch of four priests in yellow and white robes, they gently unwrapped the tricolored Indian national flag that had shrouded the body, leaving it barefoot and clad only in a goldwater earlier had said that Rockefeller, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and others not named had "ganged up to stop Goldwater." But Thursday he said former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton and Michigan Gov. George W. Romney had disavowed any part in a stop-Goldwater move.

Lodge supporters have been asked to switch their support to Rockefeller in the California campaign. The South Viet Nam ambassador's son, George, said Wednesday that Goldwater's nomination by the Republicans "would most likely set the party in decline from which it would atrophy."

Rockefeller, who forged ahead of Goldwater in recent public opinion polls after trailing, accused Goldwater of trying to distract California voters with last-minute political charges and spoke out sharply against extremism in the Republican presidential primary campaign.

Had the president lived, some time Friday after a big blue and silver White House jet, Air Force One, would have slid out of the sky to a landing at Otis Air Force Base.

And with a smile and a wave, the president would have stepped briskly into a helicopter for the 20-mile hop to the compound.

In past years, when his birthday came close to the weekend, that's how it was. He'd attend a big birthday party first, with the more than 20 Kennedy small fry for ice cream and cake, and for present giving to "Uncle Jack."

Britain Rejects A Soviet Charge

LONDON (AP) — Britain sharply rejected Thursday a Soviet charge that U.S. flights over Laos violated the little nation's neutrality.

Then Britain and the United States agreed on a firm stand before taking part in a conference on Laos requested by the Soviet Union.

The British Foreign Office dismissed as "purely propagandistic" the Soviet declaration that the United States was openly violating the 1962 Geneva agreements in conducting aerial reconnaissance runs for the Laotian government.

British and American authorities jointly set up three conditions for taking part in a new 14-nation conference on Laos.

These were announced after a day of consultation between U.S. Asst. Secretary of State William P. Bundy and Foreign Secretary Richard A. Butler and his aides. Bundy, here on an urgent mission from Washington, is flying next to Thailand for a conference with his chief, Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The conditions—identical with those laid down by Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma—call for:

—An effective cease-fire throughout the kingdom.

—A withdrawal by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao from their newly won positions in the strategic Plain des Jarres.

—A strengthening of the Laotian government of national unity and, particularly, the position and powers of the premier.

The foreign office, in announcing this decision of the conference, said: "They carried out a review of the continuing serious military situation in Laos and a discussion of concrete measures which might be taken to restore the situation."

American and British authorities declined to spell out the pre-

Serious Injuries To Motorcyclist In Crash Thurs.

LeRoy Howard, 39, 305 North Summit, received serious back injuries about 5:50 p.m. Thursday in a motorcycle accident just north of the intersection of Broadway and Summit. He was apparently paralyzed from the chest down.

Howard was taken to the Bothwell Hospital in an Ewing ambulance and treated by Drs. R. A. Enochs and A. R. Maddox. He was later transferred to Trinity Lutheran Hospital in Kansas City.

According to police, the accident occurred as Howard lost control of his 1948 Harley-Davidson motorcycle while negotiating a left turn onto Summit from Broadway. He had been eastbound on Broadway and went up the bank into the yard at 1101 East Broadway, striking a tree and coming to rest in a ditch on the east side of Summit.

According to the police accident report, Howard related to the investigating officer that the throttle had stuck on the machine and that he took to the bank in order to avoid a collision with a parked car.

The motorcycle was extensively damaged.

mise nature of "the concrete measures" they said might have to be taken to restore the situation in Laos.

It was known, however, before the talks began that the British government is wholly opposed to Western military intervention at this time.

$1.5 Million Kaysinger Cash Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to appropriate $1.5 million to start construction of the $146.2 million Kaysinger Bluff dam and reservoir in Missouri, the White House advised Missouri Congressmen today.

The project is on the Osage River, near Warsaw.

The budget bureau, it was announced, is recommending that the $1.5 million be included in appropriations for the year beginning July 1.

Budget requests sent to Congress last January asked for $1 million to continue highway relocation in the area. Up to now, $2.8 million has been spent on planning.

A large delegation, including Missouri senators and House members, and residents of the area and of Kansas City, met with President Johnson Monday to urge that construction funds be recommended for next fiscal year.

The 55,600-acre lake to be formed by the dam would be almost as large as the Lake of the Ozarks. The dam site is a mile upstream from Warsaw on the Osage River.

The President sent letters to Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., chairman of the Senate appropriations committee and Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House appropriations committee, urging the inclusion of funds for the Missouri project.

Planning is complete on the dam itself and work is under way on relocation of M13.

The Senate provided $350,000 last year but the House knocked it out. When the President did some budget trimming last year Kaysinger was one of the projects affected.

Camdenton 'Colonel' Resigns His Title

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — Ralph Morgan, former chairman of the Missouri Park board said Thursday he submitted his resignation as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov. John M. Dalton.

Morgan, president of an oil firm here and former mayor of the city, said in a statement the governor had placed the state's "fine park system in politics."

He said under Joseph Jaeger Jr. of Camdenton the state park board had established one of the outstanding park operations in the nation. Jaeger, now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, resigned last December after serving eight years as director of the state's parks.

Communist Pressure Is Described As Easing Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson on Thursday ordered his top defense and diplomatic advisers to Honolulu on June 1-2 for a special review of the crisis in Southeast Asia.

Communist military pressure in Laos was described as easing up. But concern remained over long-term prospects, and in the tangled diplomatic arena progress admittedly was slow.

Acting on Johnson's directive, as a White House announcement put it, "to review the situation in the entire area."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, now in New Delhi for the funeral of Prime Minister Nehru, will fly to Honolulu on Sunday after brief stops for talks in Bangkok and Saigon.

Joining Rusk for the Honolulu trip will be Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam; Graham Martin, U.S. ambassador to Thailand; and Philip H. Chadbourne, deputy mission chief at Vientiane.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, and intelligence chief John McCone will leave Washington on Sunday on another flight for Honolulu.

Also attending the two-day session will be a number of other high-ranking U.S. officials from Washington and elsewhere.

Among them is William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, who hurried to London on Wednesday night for urgent consultations with the British. He told newsmen at the British capital that there is real danger of a Communist takeover in Southeast Asia.

The slowdown of the Red push in Laos was reported by State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips. He said the fighting now appears to be on a smaller scale than last week when the Communist Pathet Lao swept neutralist forces off the central Plain des Jarres.

Opening Date Set

LONDON (AP) — Britain has fixed June 9 as opening day for a conference to prepare a new constitution for the Federation of South Arabia. British forces now are defending the group of 13 emirates and colonial Aden against disaffected tribesmen and infiltrators from the neighboring Yemen Republic.

Whither India In Struggle?

What Course Will Nehru's Successor Take In His Job?

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru's death raises a new series of questions in the East-West struggle for influence in this part of the world.

Among those most likely to be seeking answers are policymakers in Washington and Peking.

Diplomats will want to know what course Nehru's successor will take in India's running feud with Communist China. Will the anti-China line in India stiffen? Well there be efforts to make a diplomatic deal with India's huge neighbor?

Nehru, embittered by China's attack on India in 1962, never left any doubt where he stood on this question.

In his last news conference, a week ago Thursday, he said India would negotiate its border quarrel with China if the men in Peking approached him directly with a request for talks and if they withdrew their troops from the Himalayan territory India claims as its own.

Peking ignored this offer, which Nehru made repeatedly. Perhaps the Chinese were banking on a sudden growth of the "let's-make-a-deal" sentiment in India.

Feeling India cannot possibly cope with a hostile China and at the same time handle all its other problems, some Indians and at least one leading newspaper feel it is time to settle the China issue.

Other Indians, especially those in the military, contend India's honor has been sullied by the Chinese and that the nation's only course is one of moving closer to the United States and resisting the Chinese in every way possible.

"No deal," this segment of opinion says.

But which camp will win out now that Nehru is gone?

India's future attitude toward Communist China will be the tipoff, perhaps, to an answer of how it will deal in the larger context of East-West alignments.

American diplomats for years bucked at Nehru's firm dedication to nonaligned foreign policy. He accepted economic aid—$5.3 billion worth since 1953—but he spurned U.S. military aid.

He changed his mind in those dark days of November 1962 when Chinese troops were storming south through the Himalayas toward the plains of India. Since then, India has been arguing for more, not less, U.S. military aid. Nehru, nevertheless, told the world repeatedly that India's policy of nonalignment was not dead.

Kennedy Birthday Program

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — But for an assassin's bullet, John F. Kennedy would be celebrating his 47th birthday Friday, his fourth as President of the United States.

And it is likely that the celebration would have been at the Kennedy compound, a cluster of Kennedy family summer homes by waters of Nantucket Sound.

This year, instead of a round of birthday parties, there'll be an observance, an international television program devoted to the spiritual legacy Kennedy left to the world.

His widow, Mrs. John F. Kennedy, will be at Hyannis Port to take part in the program which will be beamed by Telstar II to Europe, with segments from three European countries bouncing back to the United States.

The former president's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, is joining Mrs. Kennedy for the Hyannis Port segment. It will be a half hour program (CBS 4:30-5 p.m. EDT).

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts will take part in a segment to be beamed from Dublin where he will appear at the Irish Parliament with Irish Prime Minister Sean Lemass.

Also from overseas the program will bring an appearance by Mayor Willy Brandt from West Berlin and former British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan from England.

The program is to call attention to the Kennedy Memorial Library, to be built close to Harvard University on the bank of the Charles River.

Good Outweighs the Bad

"Doesn't anybody read the good news in your newspaper?"

The answer to that one is they do. But the bad news is what they talk about, mostly—the horrible wrecks, the criminal acts of adults and teen agers, the disasters, the morbid stuff.

A friend persists in saying: "Nobody reads the good news. My boy won a scholarship and no one in my circle of acquaintances commented on this. My brother was arrested for a traffic violation, and everyone is talking about it."

This situation does arise from time to time and may kindle accusations that the newspaper doesn't print good news, just the bad.

As we have determined before, this is not so by actual count and measurement of the palatable items about our community life as contrasted with the unsavory. Our microfilm files will bear this out if any subscriber wants to expend energy making a check of the daily content of our newspaper.

Favorable news includes at this season of the year columns of stories about graduation exercises and related activities. Much of this pleasant reading material and pictures of students will find their way into many scrap books as mementoes of memorable occasions. Children and grandchildren yet unborn will find pleasure in reading these items of good news which appeared in the local newspaper.

Casual readers miss much by hasty perusal of the daily newspaper. Scanning the headlines of so-called big stories is not really as rewarding as leisurely reading of the many small but intimate items about home town adults who are recognized for their contribution to the development of beneficial community life, and about the children, too, who are mentioned so frequently in the good news.

There is good news in Sedalia. Your newspaper records it daily. But it is your choice to read the good or the bad and place whatever emphasis you care to on one or the other.

But the bad news will never outweigh the good news in a community like Sedalia.

Scarlet Fever Controlled By Penicillin Injections

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.,
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Q — My son recently had scarlet fever. No one would come near our home for fear they would get it. In what stage can a person transmit this disease to others? How long does the contagious stage last?

A — Scarlet fever can be transmitted during the period three or four days before the onset of the fever and for about a week after the onset. Prompt treatment with penicillin shortens this period, but unless the antibiotic treatment is continued for 10 days, the victim may become a carrier. Because the disease is so easily controlled with penicillin, quarantine is usually not required unless an epidemic develops.

Q — What causes a person to have a sore mouth and tongue? I read that anemia could cause it but I have had blood counts and am not anemic.

A — The commonest cause of sore mouth and tongue is taking food that is too hot. It may also be caused by eating raw pineapple, by smoking, and by trench mouth and other infections. When the cause is found the proper treatment can be prescribed.

Q — If a person recovers from rabbi fever, is he likely to have any after effects in later years? If so, what?

A — Tularemia or rabbit fever is an acute infection. Inadequate treatment is sometimes followed within a week or two by a relapse, but after effects in later years are rare. One attack usually confers permanent immunity.

Q — I am an albino. I have had nearsighted astigmatism since birth. Doctors tell me nothing can be done to improve my vision. I have tried glasses but they do not help. What causes albinism? What can be done to improve my vision? Is this condition likely to be passed on to future generations?

A — Yours is a recessive hereditary condition that is more common in men than in women. It is passed only if there is some albinism on both sides of the family. Thus it may skip a generation only to reappear in the grandchildren. It is characterized by a lack of pigment throughout the body. For this reason the albino becomes severely sunburned on slight exposure to the sun and will never acquire a tan.

Because the inside of the eyeball lacks the usual protective pigment, even normal daylight makes the albino very uncomfortable. His vision is often poor because of astigmatism and other errors of refraction but these could be corrected were it not for poor development of the central portion of the retina. For this there is no treatment.

Dress for Peace

The Russians may shoot down straying planes, but they seem to be unable — and unwilling — to stop the invasion of Western affluence and influence.

The good life, with all the problems that come with it, is seeping into the Soviet Union as if the Iron Curtain were no more solid than a sieve, judging by some remarks made recently by Alexei I. Adzhubei, Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law who is editor of Izvestia.

Speaking in Paris, he was quoted as saying that Russian children have "Too many things."

"For some years we have brought them up like little Americans, with the result that they are unbearable," he said.

Mr. Adzhubei also revealed Khrushchev's latest party line regarding the ideal wardrobe for the Soviet man and woman.

MIAMI HERALD: No Age Limit on Adventure.—A 70-year-old American returned home after 130 days on a raft, drifting from Peru to Western Samoa, a distance of 8,000 miles.

This is adventure of the kind usually identified with the daring and durability of youth. Pictures of the bearded, septuagenarian show eyes sparkling with a zest for life and willingness to take risks. His safe homcoming also indicates he has managed to keep himself physically fit enough to survive a 130-day voyage on a raft.

Other Americans of 70 or more are accomplishing similar feats in other fields such as the arts and sciences. What they are doing dramatizes the change which has occurred in health and long life in this country. Less than a century ago a man who lived past 50 was exceptional. Today, we have increasing numbers of men and women past 70 who enjoy both good health and good spirits.

Elder Kennedy Joins Family Confab

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — A Kennedy family reunion was held in New York recently at La Caravelle Restaurant, which Joseph P. Kennedy has backed financially. The patriarch of the Kennedy clan, now 75 years old, seemed in better health than previously. His wheel chair was parked outside and he managed to walk to the table with the aid of a cane. He was able to speak haltingly. For a time, the stroke he suffered had paralyzed his powers of speech completely.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy was present at La Caravelle; also Sen. Edward P. Kennedy and Joe Kennedy's niece, Anne Gargan.

It was reported that one subject under discussion was whether Robert should demand second place on the Johnson ticket. But what the family verdict was is not known.

Joe Kennedy's Start
The late Harold Ickes, FDR's long-time Secretary of the Interior, was omniscient on most things. But he really struck out on the Kennedy family.

Tucked away in his secret diary is this interesting item, dated June 30, 1934:

"Yesterday afternoon, the President talked over the appointments he had in mind on the new commissions. I am afraid I do not agree with him as to the chairman he is going to name for the securities commission. He has named Joseph P. Kennedy, a former stock market plunger. The President has great confidence in him because he has made his pile, has invested all his money in government securities, and knows all the tricks of the trade. Apparently he is going on the assumption that Kennedy would now like to make a name for the sake of his family, but I have never known many of these cases to work out as expected."

First Chinese-American Senator
Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, one of the wealthier members of the Senate and first Chinese-American in history to be elected to that august body, has been put on the spot regarding his wealth.

His Democratic colleague, Sen. Dan Inouye, has made public his personal assets in great detail. So have the two Hawaiian congressmen, Tom Gill and Spark Matsunaga, both Democrats. Now public attention has been focused on Fong as to whether he will follow suit.

The impeccable and imperturbable GOP Senator from Hawaii has a long list of known assets and possibly some that are not known. He owns the Foodland chain stores, operates a banana farm, heads the Finance Realty Company, the Finance Investment Company, the Grand Pacific Investment Company, the Finance Insurance Company, the Finance Home Builders, the Finance Factors, and is a senior partner in Fong, Miho, Choy and Robinson, a very successful law firm specializing in real estate.

In addition, Sen. Fong put across one of the most famous land deals in Hawaii. He bought up a large tract of lava land from Rudy Tong, subdivided it, and sold it for $270 per plot of three acres. People stood in line to gobble up the land and the Senator made something over a million.

However, the land is adjacent to live volcanoes, has no water, and is considered of dubious value today.

Note — When and if the Senator reveals his assets, it will be interesting to see whether or not he includes the reported interest in Service Games, an outfit which operated slot machines in U. S. Service Clubs in Okinawa. Fong's office at one time admitted that the Senator's assistant, Kenneth Nakamura, has been assigned to work on Service Games tax problems though Fong himself denied any connection or interest.

Johnson: One Man Rescue Squad

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Communist victory in Laos would be a virus in the intestines of all Southeast Asia. Soon the whole area would have a Red fever. This country is now considering action to stop it. It's easy to see why.

Landlocked Laos, about the size of Britain, is right in the stomach of Southeast Asia. It has 1.8 million people, mostly illiterate, and with a life expectancy of 40 years.

Most of them, living in hamlets scattered by mountains and jungles, have never heard of democracy or communism. There are no railroads, no highways in the modern sense. Few roads are suitable for cars or trucks.

Travel is by jungle path or plane. Communication is mostly by mouth or foot. Laos has fewer than 1,000 telephones. But it's the way it's landlocked that could be fatal to its neighbors.

It has frontiers with Red China, Red North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam which this country is helping fight communism, Burma, Cambodia, and Thailand. The only major neighbor it doesn't touch is Malaya.

Because of the mountains and jungles no traditional war of big armies could be fought there. It's made to order for small-scale and specialized guerrilla operations which the Communists have been perfecting for years.

Even if the Communists were crushed and driven out, they probably couldn't be kept out. Small bands could go back in by jungle path from North Viet Nam. Yet, from the description just given, Laos by itself is no attraction.

But once Laos became Red, pressure on already besieged South Viet Nam would increase and the pressure on Burma, Thailand and Cambodia would begin. All of them would mean land, people, and rice bowls for Red China and North Viet Nam.

The pressure of a Red Laos on its neighbors would get its greatest initial boost from this: U.S. prestige and confidence in its help against communism would suffer disastrously in Southeast Asia and, perhaps, in the general world.

Why is the United States mixed up in Southeast Asia at all? There are two reasons, one idealistic, although the Communists would probably hoot at this, and the other very practical.

The idealistic reason—to help people in small, weak or backward countries to work out their own destiny before communism can try to gobble them.

The practical reason—nobody gave it better than the late secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, when he said in 1954 about defending Indo-China:

"Any significant expansion of the Communist world would indeed be a danger to the United States because international communism thinks in terms of ultimately using its power position against the United States.

"Therefore Communist armed aggression in Southeast Asia would, in fact, endanger our peace and security and call for counteraction on our part."

President Eisenhower put it another way, with a now well-worn analogy: If one Southeast Asian country fell to communism, other free nations would then fall like stacked dominoes.

But something else would be endangered: The confidence of the American allies in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. These—Britain, France, the Philippines, Thailand, Pakistan, Australia, New Zealand—signed a pact in 1954:

It was an agreement to help defend one another and their area.

Since 1954, when the French who used to use Laos as a hunting preserve pulled out, the United States has given the Laotians about $500 million in aid, most of it for defense. But in these years the Communists have grown stronger.

Keep Them Busy on Trips

DEAR POLLY—I have an interesting game to keep traveling youngsters contented and happy. Before leaving home, cut out magazine pictures of churches, schools, flowers and so on. Put these in a box to give to the children when starting on the trip. Let them select a picture and give them simple instructions. A new picture cannot be taken from the box until an object similar to the picture in hand is found along the road. The game is won by the child having the most matched pictures when the journey ends. To stimulate more interest, offer the winner a small prize. —C. A. C.

DEAR POLLY — Those who constantly use a bucket around the house or garden might like my hint which will save their hands from being cut by the thin bucket handle. Unhook one end of the handle and slip a 6-to-8-inch piece of garden hose over it. Rehook the handle back in place. This will eliminate the cutting effect of the handle on the hands. —MARY

GIRLS — I am sure none of us will ever throw away old garden hose as we have had so many good hints for its use.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When using an extension cord in the attic, basement or garage, I run the cord through rubber jar rings and loop the rings over nails in the wall or ceiling. This prevents anyone from walking on the cord or tripping over it.

When using a brace and bit, place a rubber band around the bit at the depth you want the hole. Drill until the band reaches the surface of the wood. This eliminates guesswork and the hole is drilled in one operation. —A. D. M.

DEAR POLLY — For a neater work basket, secure the ends of thread on spools with a bit of gummed plastic tape.

When buttonholes on garments become frayed and too large to hold the buttons, pull the holes together with a needle and thread, leaving a slot just wide enough for the sewing machine needle. With the machine buttonhole attachment, sew around the buttonhole. Be sure to use the proper size template. You will have a good new buttonhole. —MRS. H. N. D.

Murder of an Anatomy

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: Please help me decide what to do about a situation involving my sophomore daughter and her overzealous gym teacher. This Amazon expects all the girls to be female acrobats. Each year they go through a course of tumbling which includes feats of courage that might daunt even a Wallenda!

This year the girl's gym classes have already chalked up two concussions, a sprained ankle, several pairs of broken glasses, a broken collar bone and a back injury that required a brace. My daughter dreads going to school on gym days. She can't concentrate on her classes before gym or eat her lunch afterwards. I know she is deathly afraid of jumping off the springboard over a table—possibly because she smashed her nose doing this in the 7th grade. (And somewhat spoiled its shape, I might add.)

My husband and I have lectured her about overcoming her fears, but are secretly wondering if we shouldn't give up and request that she be excused from gym during tumbling season.—DISTRAUGHT MOTHER

ANSWER: In my opinion, your daughter wins by a nose. The shape of a girl's nose is mighty important to her, and you can hardly blame your teenager for not wanting to take any chances with hers again.

If she is fearful about the springboard, she may be more accident-prone than usual. Under the circumstances, I think an excuse from tumbling is doing her more harm than good.

Rather than do it yourself, ask your family doctor to make the request. I'm certain he will be glad to co-operate for the sake of your daughter's mental and emotional health.

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: I am a seventh grader and get the new math. I saw your article in the paper. I myself think the new math is crazy. It is mixing the children up, and they don't know what they're doing.

Our math teacher is crazy and thinks we love it. Well, I don't think we do when 10 children out of 30 failed it. I failed myself.

Please put this in the paper.—JUNIOR HIGH STUDENT

ANSWER: You may have failed math—but you succeeded in getting your letter printed.

June Brides Will be More Feminine

Flowers Enhance Bridal Beauty Bridal Finery Sudsable, Too

Flowers play an important role in every girl's life, especially during the weeks preceding her June wedding. This bride-to-be (left), out for an evening with her fiancé, accents her costume with a beautiful full-blown Duchess rose. For a prenuptial party (center), she wears a corsage that was wired to her from an out-of-town friend. On her wedding day she carries her favorite roses and lily-of-the-valley to complement her lace-trimmed dress (right).

By ALICIA HART,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
What June bride doesn't want to look lovely, not only on her wedding day, but during the weeks preceding that memorable occasion?

One of the prettiest ways to accessorize your costumes for the parties and showers you will attend is to wear the most feminine adornment of all—flowers.

For a special evening out with your fiancé, a single (such as a lush rose) carried in a gloved hand can lend elegant charm to your appearance. Or you might prefer to pin a blossom to your evening purse.

When you select your flowers, be sure that they blend or contrast prettily with your outfit. And always wear them as they grow, with the stem down.

If you've been invited to a pre-nuptial party for an out-of-town friend, but are unable to attend because of your own wedding activities, it would be a nice gesture to wire her flowers to wear to her party.

You'll probably have no idea of what her gown will be like, so it's best, according to Florists' Telegraph Delivery members, to leave the selection up to the florist. He will choose neutral blossoms that will go with almost any dress.

Your bridal bouquet should be made up of your own favorite flowers and styled to coordinate with your gown. If your dress is a heavy satin or brocade, you might prefer a bouquet of carnations or snowdrops.

If you will wear a delicate fabric, such as peau de soie, you might prefer white violets, or roses and lily of the valley. But whatever blossoms you choose, your bridal bouquet should be carried low, with elbows relaxed.

During the exciting weeks before your wedding day, let fresh flowers add to your beauty. They will serve a purpose no jewels can duplicate.

This season bridal sleepwear proves that practicality and beauty can go hand in hand. Pretty trousseau choice for the young bride is the "shif-ease" (left) by Chevette (shorter than a shift, longer than a baby doll). Dacron batiste and cotton combine to make this drip-dry garment which was styled after a choir boy's surplice. Short and spicy A-line shift (center) is piped in satin with satin flower appliques. The gown matches a waffle-tricot breakfast coat. Long, shimmering empire gown and peignoir (right) looks as delicate as spun candy, but can be tossed into the automatic washer. These beautiful, easy-care fashions are Gossard-Artemis designs.

NEW YORK — Following a long diet of the sportive look in everything from boots to bathrobes, it's great to return to ruffles and frills. This season's crop of brides will enjoy the return to feminine fare more than anyone else. For a trousseau is a lot more fun when it contains gossamer fripperies.

But when you choose your trousseau, be sure to combine a smidgin of common sense with your illusion of romantic beauty. Here are some tips on the selection and care of your new lingerie.

First, buy the best you can afford. While you're getting started in your new life, you may not be able to buy replacements.

Plan a color co-ordinated lingerie wardrobe in your most becoming pastel, then add slips, bras and foundation garments in co-ordinated shades as well as in black and white. Your lingerie and foundation garments don't have to be exactly the same shade. A pale pink girdle and bra team well with a deeper pink slip, for example.

Consider ease of laundering when you buy. Much of the most filmy bridal underpinnings can be tossed into an automatic washer. But watch the labels and washing instructions.

Try on everything to be sure of perfect fit. You won't want to take up hems and adjust straps on your wedding trip.

Fine fabrics need a chance to "breathe" between wearings, so rotate wear of all lingerie.

When you pack, fold flat between layers of tissue, and use crumpled tissue to preserve the puff of a sleeve or a shirred bodice.

Keep an eye out for tiny tears in lace and for ripped seams. If ignored, even the tiniest rip can result in irreparable damage.

Good lingerie, properly cared for, should give you years of wear. So choose carefully.

Here's the Groom, All Dressed Up

By JERRY SHEEHAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK—So, despite the advice of friends, the suspicions of parents, the cruelty of national statistics, the despair of ex-girl friends, you are getting married.

For the guidance of brides there exists a legion of magazines, books and counselors. Their every step and stitch will be in the right place at the right time. But what signposts exist for the bridegroom?

You ask, "Can I wear a plaid tie and corduroy jacket with black striped trousers? Should the carnation be worn in the lapel or behind the ear? Are white loafers correct with seersucker suit?"

Courage, pilgrim. As for countless others before you, your friendly rent-a-suit man stands ready with advice. The possibilities of attire are vast—but usually determined by what the lady is wearing, time of day and the like. In a sense, you are a brittle leaf on top of a pool, swept this way and that by currents and winds beyond your control—until finally the surface tension is broken and you settle to your destiny.

Certain options do exist, however. For the really informal ceremony (this includes an elopement), a dark suit, blue or

Here we are, ready for that walk into the future. Formal wedding attire can be as ultra as you like. At the top of the scale is the white tie, wing collar, tailcoat affair. White dinner jacket is acceptable for late spring and summer days or nights. The trusty tux is fine for evening ceremonies.

gray, will do the trick. Black shoes, of course, and dark blue tie.

Past that, the directions become more complicated. The style titans and social arbiters of a leading formal wear manufacturer (Aker Six) have supplied the following hints on what to wear, when:

WHITE TIE FORMAL — For the really big wedding—the one girls dream about and their fathers have nightmares over — suitable elegance is achieved with white tie, wing collar, tailcoat with matching trousers.

White gloves and silk top hat complete this Fred Astaire tableau. Evenings only, please.

BLACK TIE FORMAL — Also

for after sunset. Just wear your tuxedo with cummerbund or vest. Gray suede gloves, optional, will hide sweaty palms at the moment of truth.

FORMAL DAYTIME — Here's our old friend the Oxford gray cutaway with striped trousers. The ascot, naturally, gray gloves and silk topper. If you don't feel married in THIS get-up, fake a cardiac seizure and reconsider.

GRAY JACKET — The Oxford gray jacket with four-in-hand tie is also for sunlight, but a little less formal than the cutaway. Trousers, striped.

Good any time of day is the white dinner jacket with bow tie and matching cummerbund. Less formal than most wedding clothes, yet neat. Not for use after August.

While planning ahead for the big day, don't forget that the bridegroom, in addition to his own suit, must pay for:

Engagement and wedding rings; license, bachelor's dinner, gifts to ushers and best man, bride's bouquet (didn't know that, did you?), corsage for mother and mother-in-law (known as getting off on the right foot), clerical fee, transportation for himself and best man. The bridegroom also foots the honeymoon expenses (not tax deductible).

One break: etiquette does not decree that you foot the cost of your ushers' and best man's attire.

New bridal fashions come and go, but the formal elegance of the traditional gown is still the favorite of most brides. Bridesmaid's gown (left) in the traditional silhouette is a long, semisheath in flower fresh pastel. This silk-linen shantung gown is sleeveless and has a high-rise back panel that floats prettily down the aisle. Her bouquet of carnations complements both her gown and the bride's flowers. Bridal gown (right) of silk-faced peau de soie is lavishly re-embroidered with Alençon lace flowers that cover the bell skirt and accent the bodice. Chapel train provides a regal touch. Bridal bouquet of very pale carnations falls in a soft semicascade. Bouquets were created by FTD designers.

Stresses Need for Continued Loyalty to School, Town

Earl Finley, a member of the Smith-Cotton High School faculty, was the speaker at the "S" Club banquet Wednesday evening at the high school cafeteria.

"The general impression of a school like Smith-Cotton is derived from the things that the students do academically, through its clubs, student government, annual, industrial arts, student newspaper, debate and athletics," he said. "He said people other places get an idea of what the school and town is like from these things."

Finley went on to say that he is from St. Louis and in 1952 when the Sedalia baseball team made an unusually good showing he began to wonder just where Sedalia was and all about it. Later, when he was offered a position here, he was anxious to come because he had been impressed with the town by some of the people in it and what they were able to do.

Opinions of school graduates who get out in the world, too, help a town he said. The graduates, he continued, should be loyal to Smith-Cotton and their town. Whenever they play a game out of town, Finley told the group, he always expects to see a former Smith-Cotton student at the game no matter where they go, because some former student always comes up and makes himself known.

What Smith-Cotton people think of Smith-Cotton is what others will think of it, he concluded.

The meeting was presided over by Bruce Richey, president, and the invocation was given by Paul Edwards, vice-president.

Special music was by Barbara Tibbitts, whose voice won her the distinction of the outstanding senior in vocal music this year. Barbara sang "Till There Was You" and was accompanied by Penny Nichols, who was the outstanding senior in instrumental music.

Barbara and Penny were awarded certificates for their achievement at the banquet along with others who had been recognized for their outstanding abilities. The others were: Toni Giger, outstanding senior girl; John Lamy, outstanding senior boy; Bob Gouge, outstanding senior in debate; Leon Hall, Jr., outstanding senior athlete with the highest grades; Terry Daugherty, outstanding athlete; Jim D. Hobdy, outstanding senior in art and Ted Wells, also, outstanding senior in debate.

The preselections were made by Bruce Richey, and the emblem was explained by Paul Edwards. "The emblem 'S' was chosen, said Edwards, because it stands for Sedalia, our town; for Smith-Cotton, our school; for senior, finalist; for skill, in which we have excelled, and service, our aim."

Mrs. Janet Steen explained the colors which are blue and gold, and why they were chosen.

There are two banquets a year, one in the spring and one in the fall, and Miss Sara Oswald, secretary, read the minutes of the fall meeting, while Mrs. Barbara Arnold, treasurer, gave the treasurer's report.

Don Lamm, Jr., reported on the revisions in the constitution that were submitted to the members for a vote. One revision was that the officers be elected for two years instead of one year. The election is always held at the fall banquet. Other revisions suggested were that the constitution which reads membership requires an "M 5.0"; that there shall be an audit of the end of the year by a council of three, and that a faculty advisory committee be appointed by the principal.

Accidents

A trailer loaded with some 300 boxes of dressed chickens overturned on Highway 65 about 15 miles north of Sedalia just south of junction of Pettis County Highway CC about 1:30 a. m. Thursday. Driver of the tractor pulling the trailer escaped injury.

Ernest P. Allgood, 31, Pineville, Mo., driver of the 1962 GMC tractor, reported he was headed north and noted an oncoming truck which was crowding the center line. When he pulled to the right the soft shoulder caused the trailer to ease over on its side and pulled the tractor with it.

Allgood explained when he went off the shoulder and the trailer started over the load shifted and carried it on over on its side. The load shifted toward the front and damaged the top of the trailer.

The driver of an Air Force wrecker which approached the wreck informed Allgood the truck that crowded him had passed him a short distance back and appeared to be "riding" the center line after passing.

Trooper Pete Stohr of the State Highway Patrol brought Allgood to Sedalia and they got three Negro men, hired another tractor-trailer unit, and returned to the scene where the chickens were unloaded from the overturned trailer and loaded on to the other unit. The load was then delivered to Boonville and Moberly.

A wrecker from Bacon's Service Station and one from Park's Service Station worked together to pull the tractor and trailer back on to the highway.

The tractor-trailer unit is owned by the O'Brien Produce Inc., of Pineville.

The driver of a tractor-trailer truck was injured when the unit loaded with watermelons left Highway 50 west of Knob Noster and overturned in a heavy rainstorm about 12:30 a. m. Thursday.

James Skaggs, 26, of Lincoln, sustained head lacerations and bruises. An ambulance summoned to the scene of the accident also skidded into a ditch and Skaggs was taken to Johnson County Memorial Hospital in Warrensburg by Officer Don Duffer of the Knob Noster Police Department.

Skaggs was treated at the Warrensburg hospital and later transferred to Bothwell Hospital here. The hospital reported him in fair condition Thursday evening.

The State Highway Patrol said the mishap occurred one-quarter mile west of Route 132 on Highway 50.

The 1963 International tractor-trailer outfit was westbound and ran off the road in the rainstorm. The unit then went out of control and flipped over, strewn watermelons along the highway.

Knob Noster police said a wrecker removed the overturned truck and a cleanup detail was salvaging the watermelons still in good condition and removing debris of those broken by the crash.

Damage was recorded to two autos involved in a minor mishap at Broadway and Ohio at 12:18 a. m. Thursday.

Police reports stated a Buick, driven by Marguerite Peabody, 46, 1406 West Broadway, proceeded forward on a green arrow, halted and was struck in the rear by a 1964 Studebaker, driven by Mrs. Stella B. Rodgers, 68, Route 5. Both autos were westbound on Broadway.

Damage was recorded to the front of the Rodgers car and to the rear of the Peabody auto.

The intersection of 16th and Brown was the scene of a two car accident at 4:53 p. m. Wednesday.

Involved, according to police, were a 1964 Dodge, driven north on Brown by Harold E. Fitzgerald, 52, 900 East 19th, and a 1961 Rambler, driven west on 16th by William J. Schock, 30, 1809 South Harrison.

Damaged was the right front of the Fitzgerald car and the left front of the Schock car.

Police investigated a two car accident at the intersection of Clinton Road and Grand at 7:22 p. m. Wednesday.

Involved were a 1956 Oldsmobile, driven east on Clinton road and negotiating a left turn by John Bronson, Jr., 18, 1706 South Quincy, and a 1964 Dodge, driven north on Grand by Roger Wadleigh, 16, 1902 South Washington.

Air And Ground Search Turns Up No Plane Crash

LARNED, Kan. (AP)—An air and ground search failed to turn up any evidence of a reported plane accident in an area north of here Thursday afternoon.

Undersheriff B. Hess said two men, one in Larned and another living about 10 miles northwest of here, heard a plane and then an explosion.

Two planes, one carrying Sheriff Roland Reece of Pawnee County, flew over an area covering the northern half of Pawnee County and the southern part of Rice County.

"They found nothing," Hess reported after the two planes had returned here. "They flew low and the visibility was good. If there was a plane that came down it must have been in very small pieces."

A ground search also was undertaken by volunteers.

Hess said reports from military station indicated there were no planes in the area that could have crashed the sound barrier and produced a loud noise.

O. E. Shearer, who lives in Larned said he heard the blast about 2:20 p. m. Al Sultman, who lives 10 miles northwest of here, said he heard the explosion about the same time.

Construction Damage

High winds Tuesday afternoon blew down a wall on the west side of the new post office under construction in Warrensburg.

The construction supervisor, George Stump, said the accident will set construction back four days. He said the wall of haydite blocks was a complete loss. The wall was 11 feet high and some 106 feet long.

The youth was granted credit for 12 days of confinement spent in the Pettis County jail.

Thomas T. Keating was Oliver's court-appointed attorney.

Oliver was arrested by Sedalia police early the morning of May 16 inside Garst's Drive-In, Broadway and Osage. Police said entrance to the establishment was gained by smashing a large plate glass in a northwest door. When taken to police headquarters and searched, police said the youth was in possession of $13.55.

John Harvey, Sr., in business here in the Harvey Brothers Implement Company, filed a damage petition in Circuit Court Thursday asking a $1,300 damage judgment against Ralph Allen Thompson, Fort Gibson, Okla., and the H. R. Hill Truck Line firm, Muskogee, Okla.

Harvey charges the defendants were negligent in failure to keep a semi-trailer truck on the right half of the roadway in connection with an accident, Jan. 12, 1964, on Highway 65 in Benton County. Harvey was driving a flat-bed truck involved in the mishap. The amount sought is for damages to the Harvey truck.

Frank Meyer is attorney for the plaintiff.

A fire in the transformer of a furnace at the John Bradley residence, 2116 East Broadway, resulted in an alarm to the Sedalia Fire Department at 3:22 p. m. Thursday. The fire was out on arrival and damage was estimated at $25.

Air Conditioning For Portion Of County Courthouse

One portion of the Pettis County courthouse is scheduled for air conditioning, it was learned Thursday from judges of the Pettis County Court.

The County Court revealed it will advertise for bids to air condition the Circuit Court chamber on the courthouse's third floor.

No other rooms or offices in the courthouse are cooled excepting the offices of Circuit Judge Frank W. Hayes and Court Reporter James Giokaris, who provide their own air conditioning unit.

Presiding Judge C. Berry Elliott said the courtroom will be air conditioned because no outside windows are available to ventilate the chamber. The courtroom is surrounded by corridors and when court is in session and doors closed there is no ventilation save some electric ceiling fans.
